Experts Optimistic On Future Of Pork Industry

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

CAMP HILL — While we have more uncertainties in this election year, H. Louis Moore, Penn State's Livestock Economist, told the Keystone Pork Congress here Tuesday that he expects 1988 to be a good year for pork producers. Especially better than was anticipated just three months ago.

Moore gave a major part of the credit for the better outlook to the expected three to five percent reduction in beef production. "We have the lowest number of cattle we've had since 1961," Moore said. The hog futures market indicates more optimism now than back in December when the February contract was in the 40's. After the new year, prices increased until the February contract closed at 47.25 last Friday.

"However, if we slide into a recession, the outlook could be vastly changed for pork products," Moore said. About half of the economists think this may happen. Because of this possibility, interest rates will be kept lower as more money is pumped into the economy.

Moore listed factors in the general economy that affect agriculture. "Growth that started in November 1982 has run much longer than usual. And while there was concern about the agricultural economy after the October stock market crash, this hasn't really affected agriculture adversely," Moore said.

"Since last April the agricultural economy has been helped by overseas grain sales and farmland values have turned upward. But the surplus grain problem hasn't gone away. We've reduced it," Moore said, "but it's still there."

Moore thinks the days of really cheap feed are probably over. Feed prices have risen some and are likely to stay rather strong. Farm income is on the rebound with a record $57 billion in 1987. With this income, some of it from government subsidies, farmers paid off debt. Income will likely be down in 1988; not because agricul-

RCMA Coordinator States Case

BY HAROLD ELY
PA RCMA Coordinator

The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) is continuing its battle against Farmland Dairies of Wallington, N.J. Farmland is virtually the only dairy processor in the Northeast which owes RCMA's dairy farmers money - over $600,000 - but refuses to pay. In a recent letter to farmers, Farmland continued its misinformation campaign in an effort to break RCMA.

FARMLAND CLAIMS: RCMA may take deductions from your milk check.

THE FACT IS: When RCMA was organized in 1973, the by-laws did allow for deducts. However, the by-laws were amended in 1987 to allow independent producers to join RCMA and to allow deductions up to 2 cents per hundredweight only from the RCMA premiums. This amendment was put in the by-laws to prevent any deductions from your milk check. The only money RCMA has access to is the over-order premium money which you would not receive anyway had it not been for RCMA.

FARMLAND CLAIMS: RCMA deducts salaries for RCMA delegates from RCMA member milk checks.

THE FACT IS: RCMA by-laws do not provide for delegate salaries though they do allow for a per [illegible] directors. Most farmers [illegible] that when a dairyman has to be away from his farm to attend an RCMA meeting, he

Beef Check-Off Administrator To Speak At Cattlemen's Conference

The National Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board's check-off coordinator will speak at the 1988 Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association Conference held this year at Pennsylvania State University on February 26 & 27.

Gary J. Enright, of South Dakota, was hired by the Beef Board to coordinate the first-ever national $1 00 per head cattle assessment and promotion program. He will discuss beef and veal promotion and the referendum which will be held May 10th.

The National Board, which consists of 108 beef, dairy and veal producers as well as 5 importers, administers the check-off and promotion program. Pennsylvania has two representatives on the Board -- J. Paul Espy, beef producer from Tyrone, and John Cope, dairy producer from Grantham

As Chief Executive Officer of the Beef Promotion & Research Board, Enright is responsible for daily operations of that organiza-

Earl and Helen Groff reminisce about the active years of Earl's involvement with the Holstein breed, which he promoted through sales and shows.

Reminiscing With Groff

BY SALLY BAIR

STRASBURG — When Earl L. Groff took a short course at Pennsylvania State College in 1923, he probably did not realize that it would start him on a lifetime of dedication to registered Holstein cows. His outstanding service to the breed was recognized when he was named to the Pennsylvania Hall of Fame in 1982.

Though his father, Enos, had grade cattle, when Earl took over the farming with his new wife Helen in 1926, he sold off the grade cows and replaced them with purebreds. By the 1930s all his herd was purebred, and he recalls that he made the decision "largely on their sale value." He adds, "They naturally got better and by knowing their ancestry, you could measure their producing ability."

Groff, now 86, and living his home farm close to Strasburg, is a man who came to know a lot about the value of sale cattle, and certainly gained a reputation for knowing cattle through his long association with the Garden Spot sales.

Groff says, "We started a little series of sales with the Lampeter

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn erased yesterday's losses and closed from 2-3/4 to 4-3/4 cents higher. Late strength in the bean complex touched off a buying frenzy in corn with December touching a new contract high of $2.20. Word of research into sudden death syndrome and ideas that India would tender overnight for oil provided the impetus for beans to break out and take corn with them. March closed up 3-1/2 cents at $2.01-3/4. Generic certificate activity was intense today with many farmers participating in PIK and Roll after yesterday's 3+ cent drop in the posted county prices.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans closed sharply higher late in the session with buying featured on gains made in soyoil. Gains were magnified by technicals with buy stops hitting at different levels throughout the afternoon. Further support came from word of research being conducted on plant sudden death syndrome. Reports that India would tender tonight for vegetable oils boosted prices throughout the soy complex. November closed 12-1/4 cents higher at $6.55 while the spot option gained 13 cents and settled at $6.33-1/2.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed from 1/4 to 3-1/4 cents lower this afternoon and liquidation in the front month set off selling in the back months. Some buying was linked to last Friday's disappointing CCC auction results, and strong weekly export inspection figures. Further selling was limited by late strength in beans and corn. March posted a settlement of $3.27-3/4, down 3-1/4 cents.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Cattle futures closed mixed this afternoon with April closing sharply higher and setting a new contract high near the close. Cash connected heavy buying in the April and June boosted prices. Futures opened sharply lower with losses attributed to yesterday's bearish 7-State Cattle on Feed report, but started to reverse on bull spreading and positioning in front of Friday's live cattle expiration. Ideas that beef prices would

Wednesday, February 17, 1988

Trading was light and selectve overall. Cutlets were in fairly good balance as a light to occasionally fair demand keeps product clearing. Breasts were starting to show up and this additional product was difficult to clear. The call for legs and leg quarters was insufficient to keep these items from backing up. Wings were the best movers but the overall supply had increased slightly. Livers were adequate, while gizzards were tight and orders were difficult to fill.

CASH GRAINS AND SOYBEANS MIXED. WHEAT MARKETS LOWER AS CURRENT SUPPLIES FOR NEARBY SHIPMENT MORE THAN ADEQUATE. FRIDAY'S RECENT CCC AUCTION REPORTED SALES LESS THAN TRADE EXPECTATIONS OF 16 1 MILLION BUSHELS. THE U.S D.A. ANNOUNCED FRIDAY'S AUCTION WOULD NOT USE THE NEW CCC CATALOGUE AND MANY TRADERS CONTENT TO WAIT. LOSSES ON WHEAT WERE LIMITED BY ANNOUNCEMENT OF U.S.S.R. PURCHASES OF 500,000 METRIC TONS HARD RED WINTER WHEAT FOR MARCH SHIPMENT. THE U S.D A. ALSO ANNOUNCED IT WILL BEGIN RELEASING 814.2 MILLION DOLLARS IN GENERIC CERTIFICATES. COUNTRY MOVEMENT OF CORN CONTINUES LIGHT. SOYBEAN MARKETS RALLIED HIGHER ON STRENGTH IN OIL AND MEAL MARKETS.

WORLD WEATHER FOR WEEK ENDED 2/14/88: UNITED STATES: ABOVE-NORMAL TEMPERATURES MELTED MOST SNOW COVER IN THE CENTRAL GREAT PLAINS, LEAVING WHEAT VULNERABLE TO FREEZE DAMAGE. WARM WEATHER PROMOTED GROWTH IN THE SOUTHERN GREAT PLAINS. WINTER WHEAT AND SMALL GRAINS WERE MOSTLY GOOD TO FAIR

SNOW COVER PROTECTION WAS ADEQUATE DURING PERIODS OF COLD TEMPERATURES EXCEPT IN THE CENTRAL GREAT PLAINS AND PACIFIC NORTHWEST. WIDE TEMPERATURE VARIATIONS LEFT WHEAT SUSCEPTIBLE TO FREEZE DAMAGE IN KANSAS. MOISTURE IS STILL NEEDED IN WESTERN AREAS. LIVESTOCK WAS MOSTLY GOOD THE COLD WEATHER INCREASED STRESS IN THE NORTHERN AND CENTRAL GREAT PLAINS, CORN BELT, AND ROCKY MOUNTAIN STATES.

AUSTRALIA. HEAVY RAIN FELL ALONG QUEENSLAND'S NORTHEASTERN COAST. RAINFALL WAS WIDESPREAD ACROSS SUMMER CROP AREAS OF QUEENSLAND AND SOIL MOISTURE REMAINS FAVORABLE FOR MOST CROPS IN THE SOUTH, SEASONABLY WARM AND DRY WEATHER COVERED MOST WHEAT AREAS, WITH SCATTERED LIGHT SHOWERS OVER PARTS OF THE SOUTHEAST.

SOUTH AMERICA. IN ARGENTINA, LATE-WEEK SHOWERS BROUGHT BENEFICIAL MOISTURE TO NORTHWESTERN BUENOS AIRES AND SURROUNDING AREAS. THE RAIN AND MILD WEATHER FAVORED GRAINFILLING CORN AND POD-SETTING SOYBEANS, FOLLOWING BELOW-AVERAGE JANUARY RAINFALL IN THE PRIMARY SUMMER CROP AREAS WHILE A TREND TOWARD BELOW-NORMAL RAINFALL HAD DEVELOPED IN RECENT WEEKS, PERIODIC SHOWERS AND SEASONABLY MILD TEMPERATURES HAVE MAINTAINED FAVORABLE GROWING CONDITIONS IN SOUTH-CENTRAL BRAZIL, LIGHT, SCATTERED RAIN FELL IN RIO GRAND DO SUL WHERE ABOVE-NORMAL JANUARY RAINFALL ALLEVIATED EARLIER DRYNESS. SUBSTANTIAL SHOWERS COVERED SOYBEAN AREAS FAVORING POD-FILLING SOYBEANS ACROSS NORTHERN SOYBEAN AREAS.

EXPORT NEWS: U.S.S R OVERNIGHT BOUGHT 500,000 TONNES U S NO. 2 OR BETTER HARD RED WINTER WHEAT FOR MARCH SHIPMENT. Cooperation Key To Improved Farm Income

BY KATHY E. GILL
Executive Director,
Pa. Association of Farmer Cooperatives

What's a dairy farmer to do?

Federal prive support levels have dropped steadily throughout the '80s, from $13.10 on January 1, 1983 to $10.60 on January 1, 1988. And most economists are forecasting a drop to $10.10 on January 1, 1989.

Six years and a 23 percent drop in federal milk prices, despite a paid diversion program and a whole-herd buyout. The writing is on the wall: the federal price support program is heading steadily back to its origin -- a vehicle for price support... not a price-setting mechanism but a floor, the proverbial "safety net."

Northeastern regional factors -- higher land values, attractive off-farm employment opportunities, declining unemployment rates -- are not factored in the federal price.

Higher prices, then, must come from the market, not the government. And the only way all Northeastern dairy farmers can realize higher prices and improved net farm income is by working together. That means joining and supporting cooperatives like the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency (MACMA) or a more traditional dairy cooperative.

The alternative is to let Washington-set prices trigger dog-eat-dog competition as producers scramble for the small fluid market share with individual handler premiums.

An issue of control

There is a lot of rhetoric in farm circles about farmers being price-takers, not price-makers. It's time to substitute action for words. Cooperatives are the only way farmers can control their prices and achieve higher farm income. Why? It takes unified, collective action to exercise the right to establish the price of milk.

Organizations like RCMA and MACMA have been able to unify dairy farmer economic interests. Because milk used for fluid consumption has the highest value and is the most difficult to import from other markets, that is where the premium is being fought.

The Class I premium is the difference between the farmer-established price and the federal order price. Remember, these premiums are in addition to the prices paid by traditional cooperatives or other handlers. It's the icing on the cake, so to speak. So if a few handlers succeed in convincing their farmer suppliers to turn their backs on cooperation, who is exercising market control?

Something this powerful, with this much potential for improving farm income, must be illegal, right? Although there are folks who would have you believe RCMA is illegal, they are wrong.

A question of legality

Congress recognized that farmers could never set the price they received for their products if they were prohibited from joint marketing. That's because there are a lot more farmers selling milk than there are handlers buying it. So Congress provided protection for farmers who want to exercise control over their pricing.

There is a restriction: farmers cannot unduly enhance prices. That's why RCMA's current Federal Order 2 Class I price of $14.45 is determined using economic factors in the market. In fact, this price is three percent lower than the Federal Order 2 Class I price in January 1985.

Over the same period, consumer prices have increased. From 1985 to 1988, the consumer price index for food increased an average of 3.15 percent per year. But the price farmers received for milk has steadily declined. Clearly, dairy farmers are not guilty of undue price enhancement.

So what is a dairy farmer to do?

Federal programs are taking a back-seat to market forces. So farmers who want to control the price they receive for their product, rather than take whatever price someone is willing to offer -- have only one answer. Cooperate with fellow dairy farmers Today. Tomorrow could well be too late.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Use Quality Seed

Many people are making plans for the 1988 growing season. In these plans, we should be preparing to use the very best quality seeds possible. Leftover seeds may be satisfactory if properly stored. If they are certified or top quality seed to start with, it would be a good idea to run a germination test to be certain they'll grow. This can be done with the old, but still effective, "Rag Doll" method (wrapping seeds in a rolled-up moist rag or burlap, or by placing seeds in a dish on wet paper towels, cover with plastic, and keep in a warm place for at least 10 days). If these seeds do not grow under these tests, don't rely on them for your crop.

Certified seed may cost a little more in the beginning, but usually is worth the difference.

To Broadcast Legumes

Alfalfa and red clover growers who are planning to broadcast the seed into a stand of winter wheat or barley should be preparing their seed now. Research and experience have both proven that early March seeding will give the best results. It's the time of year when the ground freezes and thaws frequently, creating a "honeycomb" condition to the top soil. This is an excellent way to give the seeds a light covering of top soil. If the broadcast seeding is made in late March, this condition may not prevail.

The seeds should be of top quality and be innoculated with legume bacteria before seeding.

To Be Aware of Alkaline Water for Pesticides

If your water is alkaline, especially if the pH is 8 or greater, you may have trouble getting good results from the pesticide spray material you are using on cropland. Water supplies in many areas have sufficient natural alkalinity to cause a "breakdown" of certain pesticides.

This means pest control may be somewhat less than desirable, or even non-existent because the ingredient will be rendered inactive before it even reaches the plant or pest. If the spray is allowed to stand several hours before spraying, as much as 50 percent or more of the active ingredient may be decomposed.

Our pesticide specialist tells us that a pH in the range of 4 to 6 is recommended for most pesticide sprays. You can adjust spray solutions to this range by buffering agents. In general, the insecticides are affected more severely by alkaline water than fungicides or herbicides.

To Prepare For Dormant Sprays

Many types of trees are infested with various kinds of scale insects. These pests attach themselves to the bark and twigs and shrubs and suck strength from the plant. One of the best treatments is to apply a dormant spray oil before the buds start to open. The date of the spray will vary with the weather. However, on many fruit trees and shrubbery this will be late February and early March. The spray should be applied before the buds open. In addition, a spray during May or June while the insect is in the crawler stage is strongly suggested; materials for this spray can be Sevin or Malathion. Scale insects should be controlled -- the way is to use a dormant spray.

The Cooperative Extension service is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HOW EVEN IS "GETTING EVEN"?

February 21, 1988

Background Scripture:
Matthew 18.
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 12:12-26.

Just before Christmas, I saw an article in the Dallas Morning News about a new gadget that was being "marketed for adults." This gadget would be installed in your auto and, whenever another driver committed any kind of offense against you — taking your parking place, cutting in line ahead of you, taking up more than just one lane — you could press a button on the gadget and get the satisfaction of hearing simulated sounds of cannon fire and explosions indicating that you had "zapped" your opponent. "Don't get mad," said the advertisement, "get even!"

According to the article, the company manufacturing this gadget was recording record sales. I hope that the gadget proved to be a marketing disaster. Can you imagine the effect upon children, seeing Daddy or Mommy responding to a minor irritation with a simulated "zap"! Is the step from a simulated "zap" to a real one all that far? How much more instruction in "getting even" do our children need?

LOVE'S LIMIT

The desire to "get even" is one of our greatest human temptations. Is it something we learn, or are we born with it? I think that mostly it is something we are taught. We very early learn that we are expected to "get even." That teaching of retaliation may come from our peers, our society, our world. The movies and television — especially "children's cartoons" — often teach "getting even" as a way of life and essential to one's "honor."

Once again we can see just how radically different are Jesus' teachings on this subject. Nowhere do we find Jesus ever suggesting that we need to "get even" with someone. Instead, what he teaches is diametrically opposed to "getting even." So, when P. r asks him, "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? As many as seven times?", Jesus surprises him by saying. "I do not say to you seven times, but seventy times seven" (Matthew 18-21,22).

Actually, when we think we are "getting even," we are simply perpetuating the original wrong. Thus, when we retaliate against others, we only think we are "getting even." That is because these matters are judged, not by our own standards, but by God's. It is assumed that when we retaliate against someone else, we have "evened the score." In reality, however, God sees our act of retaliation as the creation of a new debt and in his sight there is no "getting even."

WHO'S AHEAD?

There is some powerful evidence of this in the world today. Consider the Arab vs. Israeli conflict and animosity. Both the Arab and the Israeli regard themselves as the injur ' party who needs to "get even." Both trace the present conflict to an act or acts by the other party. Who is right? Both are right or no one is right. An Israeli shoots an Arab because another Arab stabbed an Israeli. The Arab attacker, in turn, claims that an Israeli bulldozed his family dwelling. The Israel with the bulldozer justifies his action with the remembrance of an attack by Arabs on his family farm. And so on and so on! Where did it all begin and where does it stop? So long as we are driven to "get even," it will never stop.

Other Banks Will Lend You Money, Weather Permitting.

When it suits their profit motives, commercial banks are happy to make farm loans.

But let the least little cloud appear and their interest in you quickly disappears.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, has stood by farmers through all kinds of weather. For 70 years.

We've stood by you in the apple orchard and the hen house. In the potato field and tobacco barn. Something other bank officers find hard to do from behind a desk.

And because Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the farmers who use its services, you'll never talk to anyone who doesn't know a disc harrow from a wheel barrow.

So the next time you need a loan, you could take a chance on a fair weather friend. And maybe you'll come out okay.

But in the long run, you're better off with someone who's with you, rain or shine.

FUEL INJECTION & TURBOCHARGER SPECIALIST

WINTERTIME PROBLEMS

The year 'round problems of water damage and carbonizing of the fuel injection system become more acute during the cold winter season And, diesel engines now become exposed to another wintertime problem Waxing and Gelling Diesel fuel contains paraffin wax which develops into crystals as the temperature drops When crystals begin to form, the temperature is at "cloud point" The pour point of the fuel is the temperature at which the crystals have now formed into a lattice-type pattern, restricting fuel flow This is waxing and gelling, and it clogs filters and blocks fuel lines

POLAR POWER - THE ULTIMATE WINTERTIME TREATMENT

• POLAR POWER combines the advantages of FUEL POWER and FLOW IMPROVER by preventing water damage, the growth of algae, and the carbonizing of injection system AND by preventing waxing and gelling — giving you the ultimate wintertime product

"Sure I'm Feeding YORK CALCIUM CHIPS

With egg prices where they are, I don't need cracked shells. CHIPS help to provide calcium on a time-release basis - it's there in the early morning hours when the shells are being formed.

I'm also getting a better feed conversion. I don't know if it's the grit action of the CHIPS in the gizzard or that CHIPS separate the food particles so that the digestive juices work more efficiently. - I just know that CHIPS work."

YORK CALCIUM CHIPS - The choice of both the poultrymen and the birds.

Ask your feed dealer or ask us. We'll show you how YORK CALCIUM CHIPS can lower your feed costs.

Make Hardy Brand® your hybrid.

Make every kernel count.

Tom, Frank and Rick Telesz of Lawrence County, Pa., are strong believers in neighborliness. And that has made them strong believers in Hardy Brand corn hybrids.

"The reason we decided to try Hardy was because of what the neighbor said. He said he didn't have a measure of the yields, but all he knew was that it filled the silo fast," Tom said. "So we tried it, and he was right."

Was he ever. "That was the first time I had to ride the clutch chopping corn silage. It was that heavy," Tom reported. Their field of 760XS produced about 32 tons of silage per acre in a county where the average yield is closer to 18 tons.

Meanwhile, their 370XS yielded so well for grain that a four-row combine could only take two rows at a time. "That was all the machine could handle because the corn was so heavy," Tom said.

The 370XS yielded 2,400 bushels of 24% moisture shelled corn off of 10 acres, while 760XS, 797XS, and 545XS yielded 222 bushels, 204 bushels, and 188 bushels per acre of dry corn.

Because of their experience last year, the Telesz dairymen will plant all of their corn acreage with Hardy Brand hybrids this year. "We were very happy with the grain yield and very happy with the silage yields," Tom said. "We'll plant more of it."

should be reimbursed the cost of hiring someone to milk his cows.

FARMLAND CLAIMS: RCMA is not bonded - that there is no guarantee of your RCMA milk check.

THE FACT IS: RCMA does not need to be bonded since it only has over-order premium money which you would not receive if it were not for RCMA. Farmland has to be bonded, not because it wants to be, but because the law requires it. Farmland operates on your money, sometimes owing dairymen for as much as 45 days' milk.

FARMLAND CLAIMS: It treats all producers equally and pays an additional 25 cents to Farmland RCMA members as well as non-RCMA members.

RCMA ASKS: Could it be coincidental that Farmland took this position shortly after a number of RCMA Farmland shippers in Wayne County, PA, notified Farmland that they were seeking another handler because Farmland was paying its shippers a 25-cent premium and only 9 cents to his shippers who were RCMA members? It brings to mind the old saying, "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive." If it is worth the 75 cents per hundredweight premium that Farmland is paying producers and thousands of dollars in "handouts", it should be worth twice that much to dairymen to keep RCMA viable.

FARMLAND CLAIMS: The RCMA Board of Directors is comprised of co-op dairymen.

THE FACT IS: Four out of the 10 members of the RCMA Executive Committee are independent dairymen, and the Board is a mixture of both independent and cooperative dairymen.

THE FACT IS: The 25-cent premium that Farmland is paying its RCMA shippers is one-cent less than they should have paid on September milk and THE FACT IS that it is 24 cents less than the over-order premium RCMA would have been able to charge if all Northeast dairymen were supporting RCMA on September 1st.

THE FACT IS: That in New England, where the majority of producers are in co-ops and where 97% of the producers are RCMA members, milk handlers agreed to pay the full RCMA premium. Those producers received 37 cents per cwt. for their September milk compared to 9 cents in the rest of the Northeast. These producers in New England have also agreed to share their premium monies with Federal Order #2 producers to prove RCMA would work. In addition, over-order pricing is now in effect in 30 western markets where the average over-order premium charged to handlers was 92 cents/cwt.

It is time for all dairymen to ask themselves a few questions. Where were the premiums before RCMA? Where will the premiums be without RCMA? Is it discrimination against a handler such as Farmland if they are asked to pay the same over-order premium other handlers have agreed to pay?

The price of milk rose an average of 13 cents per gallon in New York when over-order pricing started. But only three cents of that increase can be attributed to the RCMA premiums. Where is the rest of that money going?

The future of Northest dairy farming is now at stake. Are you going to be part of making it happen, or are you going to sell out for a few pennies that are here today and gone tomorrow? Can you produce milk for $10.50/cwt?

Dr. Randall Torgerson, Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Cooperative Service, recentlyl said: "If dairymen of the Northeast as a whole allow RCMA to fail, they still don't have their act together and have no one but themselves to blame for lower milk prices."

Join with your neighbor and make over-order pricing and RCMA a reality before it is too late.

Babies And Sundaes Top Dairy Promotions

Babies will be big in local dairy promotions this year, according to Promotions Director Lolly Long of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. She reports that nine local committees will kick off June Dairy Month activities by honoring the first babies born in their counties.

The nine were among 41 local dairy promotion groups to receive $30,504.25 in PDPP grants and matching funds for the January-June period, Long said.

Outright grants of $6,847 were made for the first time this year for promotion supplies. Grants were limited to $200 per committee. Matching funds of $23,657.25 were made on a 50-50 basis.

Giant ice cream sundaes ran a close second in promotion popularity, Long noted. Seven counties plan to make them, with Armstrong county getting a head start in April.

The grass roots committees prove that the fabled Madison Avenue ad agencies have no lock on creativity. A giant banana split will catch public attention for the Columbia-Luzerne committee, frozen yogurt will be the mall treats of Blair county promoters and a 100 foot cheese sub will headline a dairy promotion in Erie county.

Potter county will sponsor a "milk spotter" promotion this coming spring, and Adams county a "dairy shopper stopper."

For the health conscious, a nutrition program is set in Jefferson county and a "Health Fair" in Clearfield county.

The athletically inclined will match their skills in a 10 kilometer "dairy dash" in Tioga county, 8K race in Juniata county, triathalong in McKean county and a "Real Pull((tug of war) in Beaver-Lawrence counties.

In Juniata county, the dairy promotion committee wouldn't settle for just a June baby promotion. In January, it also welcomed the first baby of the new year.

Two county promotion committees will use matching funds to purchase and outfit dairy stands. Chester county dairy promotion committee received $2,000 towards its "Mobile Dairy Barn" and the Lebanon county group $1,283.01 for its "ice cream and milk shake wagon barn and trailer."

Here are the 41 committees, their promotions for the first half of 1988, and total sums received from Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program:

Adams County Dairy Promotion-- radio advertising, first June baby, essay contest, Country Times, Dairy Shopper Stopper and mall promotions. $744.50.

Cornell Cooperative Extension To Host Statewide Livestock

ITHACA, N.Y. — A statewide symposium to help livestock producers in New York State became more competitive in raising beef, swine and sheep will be held at the Syracuse Sheraton Inn on February 24 and 25.

The New York Livestock Symposium will focus on business management, according to symposium chairman, Danny G. Fox, a professor of animal science and a beef specialist in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University. The sponsor is Cornell Cooperative Extension.

A highlight of the program will be a presentation by Donald Butcher, commissioner of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, who will discuss the state's programs to support New York's livestock industry on Febraury 25.

The symposium will begin at 10 a.m. on the 24th with talks by Cornell specialists on extension programs to boost the sheep, swine, beef cattle and meat industries. Also featured will be a talk on "Prescriptions for Carcasses to Meet the Consumer's Demand."

The afternoon program will cover management programs for beef, swine and sheep industries. Topics include:

- Controlling production costs to achieve profitable beef cow-calf operations.
- Characteristics of feedlot enterprises in New York State with potential for economic success.
- Bull test, pasture management systems, computer software and telemarketing of feeder cattle to help beef producers maximize profitability.
- New York State's swine industry today and tomorrow.
- Impact of new technology on future swine enterprises.
- What's ahead for the small, medium or large swine enterprises.
- The National Sheep Improvement Program, a new sheep production records system.
- Creating demand for lamb.
- New efficient lamb production systems.

The Feb. 25 morning session will feature presentations on livestock price cycles and risk, futures and options, and how to establish and manage a hedge against risk. These talks will be followed by a panel discussion on risk management.

Scheduled out-of-state speakers include Donald Orr, vice president of United Feeds Co. in Decatur, Ind.; Robert Van Stavern, a meats extension specialist with Ohio State University; James Bruce, a lamb and wool marketing specialist for the American Sheep Producers Council in Denver, Colo.; Michael Orndorff, a commodity broker with the Pennsylvania Farmers Marketing Association; and Ronald Manley, a marketing specialist also with the Pennsylvania Farmers Marketing Association.

For information about registration, contact David Weaver, regional Cooperative Extension specialist, 21 Grove St., East Aurora, N.Y. 14052, or local county extension offices. Weaver can be reached at (716) 652-5453.

King Is PCHRH Foal Sweepstakes Winner

YORK — Evelyn King, Pipersville, was the winner of the Pennsylvania Council on Horseback Riding for the Handicapped (PCHRH) Paso Fino foal sweepstakes. King's name was drawn at the 28th annual Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Show held at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg in October.

The registered Paso Fino foal was donated by Art & Lee Glatfelter of Fieldstone Meadows Farms. The proceeds from the sweepstakes will be used to defray the costs of operating the Pennsylvania Council on Horseback Riding for the Handicapped, a statewide therapeutic riding organization. Instructor training, special seminars, Equestrian Special Olympics, mini-scholarships and other program expenses are supported by the PCHRH.

The PCHRH was formed in combination with the Pennsylvania Easter Seal Society of Pennsylvania to provide therapeutic horseback riding to the physically and/or mentally challenged of Pennsylvania.

Riding helps physically handicapped, mentally retarded, learning disabled and emotionally disturbed children and adults improve their coordination, posture, balance, strength and muscle tone.

Other winners were Michelle Lovasik, Kittaning; Sherre Wright, Montoursville; Brenda Wilderson, Claysville; and Pat Reynolds, Woodsboro. The additional prizes were donated by Kut's Harness Shop, Carlisle; Purina Feeds, North East Chow Division; and Big "D" Horse Blankets.

For more information on the Pennsylvania Council on Horseback Riding for the Handicapped, contact the Executive Director, 405 Agricultural Administration building, University Park, PA 16802, or call (814) 865-6551.

Small Farm Successes

Small-scale farm operators are often more successful than larger operators. Why? Dave Banker, a USDA Economic Researcher reported in a 1985 study, "Most of the debt-free and lowdebt farms are small operations. More than three-fourths of the farms with no debt, and about two-thirds of those with debt-to asset ratios below forty percent and 1985 sales of less than $40,000.

Successful small farms managers have many characteristics in common. They include the following:

— Work hard to avoid debt.

— Carefully manage their capital assets (equipment, land and livestock).

— Conduct farming with labor efficiency (high level of worker output).

— Pay attention to details (watch cash flow from week to week).

— Produce higher than normal rates of return on crop and livestock production.

— Watch costs daily and stick to one major enterprise.

— Abilities are extremely diversified (specialists in many fields).

Others rate personal farm manager "success" based on immeasurable qualities. They include:L

— A good living environment.

— High levels of personal health and energy.

— Long term "family" oriented relationships.

— Worthy goals and ideas and feelings of personal fulfillment.

tion, including administration, collection, enforcement, contract implementation and producer information coordination. He also serves as assistant Secretary/ Treasurer of the Board.

Seventy-three million dollars were collected during 1986-87 by 41 state beef councils and 9 states not having councils. States have the option of using up to $.50 of each dollar collected, for state promotion. Beef, dairy and veal producers on the Board control how the money is spent. National programs include TV and radio advertising. Nine of the top ten shows feature beef ads as well as selected specials -- currently the Olympics -- with large audiences. James Garner appears in these ads. Network radio with Paul Harvey and print ads in 6 national magazines are included in national beef ad program.

Check-off funded programs also includes special point-of-purchase promotions in retail markets, food service promotions, consumer information and research.

"We believe our seminars for food editors, dieticians and nutritionists have been especially effective in bringing the story of modern beef to groups that advise and influence consumers," Enright said. "Studies show they are having a positive effect and the market is turning around," he added.

Robert Coleman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, said state programs complement the national promotions by extending them to the local level. "For example the national program places point-of-purchase material in large chain supermarkets, while we install similar information in small chains and independent markets. We are planning a joint promotion with the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion office for Pennsylvania in April featuring "gourmet cheeseburger", using information provided by the American Dairy Association and Beef Industry Council."

Producers will vote May 10th to keep or discontinue the $1.00 check-off. "Our job is to make sure every producer knows how his investment dollars are being spent and what results are being achieved so he can make a informed decision based on facts not hearsay," said Enright. "The bottom line for the producer is, of course, has this investment helped him regain profitability because of the stronger market," he added.

Enright will address the conference Saturday morning, February 27th.

Purina Holds Dairy Meeting

INTERCOURSE — The efficiency of a feeding program is more important than what it costs, according to Dr. John Clark, Keystone Division Dairy Consultant for Purina Mills Inc. Clark was one of the featured speakers at the Dairy Day held at Plain & Fancy Restaurant last week.

"When you go into a higher energy feed by adding the extra amount of fat, you get about a 10% more energy in the ration," Clark said. While you may have added $20-$40 cost per ton, the increased milk production will often give you 100% return on that extra investment. A formula that Clark uses is that for one pounds of milk a cow peaks higher for her lactation you get from 200-300 more pounds of milk over the 305 days.

"Good quality hay makes a difference too," Clark said. "That's especially true when you use fat-added concentrates. You need to feed the highest energy and the required protein possible while you make sure you have added the fiber for top butterfat production," Clark said.

Also on the program, were Dr. John H. Mahoney, Purina Vertinary Consultant from St. Louis, Missouri, and Laurence Wile, Local Dairy Specialist. Mahoney spoke about the economic significance of eliminating foot and leg problems in dairy cows. He listed environment, genetics, disease, and nutrition as four areas where help can be given.

Under environmental modifications, he said you should make sure lots are scraped regularly and have adequate bedding in the stalls. In addition concrete surfaces should have proper texture--not too smooth and not too rough.

Under genetics he said you should look for cow families that have a tendency not to have leg and foot problems.

Wile said that we have gone to about nine percent fat added in the dairy rations. "This allows us to get an extra 3 to 6 pounds of milk per day at peak feed intake," he said. "Through the Purina research farm we determined the total nutrient balance needed to get this added production. We try to get about 1½ pounds of fat into the cow's diet each day."

Having trouble finding a Doebler dealer? Call me, Willard Jones, at 717-753-3210

"We discard our old hybrids . . . not blend 'em"

Silage blends are tempting. So are farm economy packs. But who are we kidding. These are discontinued hybrids . . . ones that no longer meet the competition. Or pay the bills.

That's why Doebler discards the has beens. And only sells the top of the line. Like Doebler 75X, Pennsylvania's all time champ with 281.6 bushels.

New Extra Performance single crosses lived up to advance notices in 1987 tests. And then some. Doebler 66XP popped 212.7 bu. at Saegerstown, PA, with solid 165.2 bu. average in 30 trials. Same great news for 57XP and 28XP. But bad news, too. Two XPs sold out. Supply of 28XP limited.

Ask your Doebler dealer about these hot ones. All top of the line for 1988:

DOEBLER 89X-C, 120 days. Old reliable popped 184.4 bu. last year at East Earl, PA. Averaged 158.3 bu. in 1987 farm tests, 165.4 bu. in 1986. Shakes off drought and leaf diseases. Good standup. Deep kernels.

DOEBLER 86X-A, 119 days. Outstanding stalks on this 86X update. Better sheller, too. Hit 196.7 bushels at New Holland, PA last fall, 187.8 bu. at Dover, DE, Quick drydown. Medium ears.

DOEBLER 75X, 113 days. PA's all time corn champ and making new fans every year. In 1987, shelled out 212 bu. at Lewisburg, PA, 164.7 bu. average for 32 farm tests. Great stander. Drought tolerant.

DOEBLER 70X-C, 112 days. Fill silo and pick rest. Large, green plants. Sturdy stalks. Big ears. Coming off 155.5 bu. test year, with a 186.8 bu. top in Ohio. Shrugs off Northern Leaf Blight.

DOEBLER 67X, 108 days. Talk about consistent. 67X averaged 167.3 bu. in 1986 Penna Commercial Standard trials, and 162.5 in 1987. Half sister to 65X. Same strong stalks and disease tolerance. But lower price.

DOEBLER 48X, 90 days. Three time champ of PA Commercial Corn trials. Capable of two, three and four ears per stalk. Averaged 165.2 bu. in 1987 farm trials. Medium height. Excellent stander. Plant thick.

DOEBLER 48X-E, 87 days. Quicker dry down than 48X. Same great stalks. Multiple ears keep it shelling big year after year. 157.2 bu. average last fall in 11 tests, 173.1 bushel top at Saegerstown, PA.

DOEBLER 29X, 79 days. Best choice for shortest season areas of Pennsylvania and New York State. Long ears. Fairly tall. Quick drydown. Outshells many 85 day hybrids. Sorry, supply limited for 1988.

Everything sells in Doebler's bushel bag, of course. Super singles and single crosses can have up to 10% more medium flats than 80,000 unit bags. Now that's a real bargain.

Unangst Elected Chairman Ag Republicans

Don Unangst, Greenville, was elected chairman of the Pennsylvania Ag Republicans at it's annual meetng earlier this month. And in his first five minutes on the job the Mercer County farmer launched a major membership drive.

"We must build from the grassroots up," he asserted, looking ahead to statewide and presidential elections. He noted that the Ag Republican organization would not be involved in primary races.

Unangst succeeded Dennis Grumbine, Myerstown, who stepped a side after seven years as Ag Republican chairman.

Also elected at the annual meeting were Ernie Miller, Hamburg, Berks County, vice chairman; and Ed Nehrig, Homer City, Indiana County, treasurer. Carolyn Rutter, Dover, York County, was reelected secretary.

The new membership campaign will be headed by seven regional coordinators elected at the meeting. They include:

Northwest — Beverly Snyder, Emlenton, Venango County.

Southwest — Jeff McConnell, Volant, Lawrence County.

Southwest Central — Joe Johns, Davidsville, Somerset County.

North Central — Charles Benner, Middleburg, Snyder County.

Southeast Central — Glenn Wengert, Myerstown, Lebanon County.

Northeast — Dan Naylor, Factoryville, Lackawanna County.

Southeast — Richard Solly, Ivyland, Bucks County.

LITITZ — Most of the goals and objectives set by the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative were successfully met in 1987, company officials told members at the various district annual banquets this past week.

There was a decrease in total services, which reflected an overall increase in conception rate. In addition, Direct-Herd sales experienced a sharp rise, higher-performance level bulls were used more often, and district boundaries were expanded, which will result in a greater return for members on their dollars.

Officials were optimistic about 1988. "It wouldn't surprise me if you pay less for bulls in 1988 than you did in 1987 without sacrificing any genetic quality," said Gary Heckman, member sales director.

Atlantic sampled 37 young Holstein sires last year and hope to progency test more than 40 in 1988. Emphasis continues center on milk, solids, and type. The firm's Linear-Mate system has been expanded for 1988 by two programs to add options for application by members.

Atlantic honored its members whose herd production average was at least 10 percent above the state production average for milk or butterfat and who have a herd that is at least 67 percent Atlantic sired.

USDA Proposes To Expand Identification Requirements

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Tomorrow, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will propose to require identification of all swine in interstate commerce in order to make it easier to trace the source of diseased animals or those with drug or chemical residues, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Marketing and Inspection Services Kenneth A. Gilles said.

"A nationwide identification and traceback system would lead to improvements in the safety of the food supply as well as animal health," Gilles said. "It would provide the mechanism for tracing the source of contaminated food as well as the information necessary for pinpointing and correcting animal health problems. It also would benefit pork production by enhancing disease control to reduce losses."

Gilles added that support for this concept has been broad; it includes Congress and consumer, scientific and industry organizations. The National Academy of Sciences, in a 1985 report on federal meat inspection, listed an animal identification system as one of the components of an optimal inspection program. The concept also has been endorsed by such groups as the American Meat Institute and the National Pork Producers Council. Congress, in legislation enacted in 1986, asked USDA to evaluate livestock traceback.

Under the proposed rule, USDA would expand its requirements so that anyone handling swine in interstate commerce--from the farm to the meat plant--would have to identify the animals and maintain records on that identification for two years.

"Such a system would facilitate efforts to eradicate diseases by making it possible to trace movements of infected swine and thus locate sources of infection," Gilles said. In addition, under the proposed system, when USDA inspection of hogs at slaughter revealed a contamination problem, USDA could locate the site of the problem and work with producers to contain and eliminate the problem.

Without a comprehensive system, investigations are time-consuming and costly to state and federal agencies. "The proposed requirements would increase efficiency and protect the public health," Gilles said.

The proposal would require that each hog be identified individually or by lot if it was raised, marketed and sent to slaughter from a farrow (birth) to finish operation. Pork producers would have to use identification methods-- such as ear tags or tatoos--included in the proposal or could seek approval of other methods from the deputy administrator of Veterinary Services in USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

According to the proposal, written records would have to be kept on all swine in interstate commerce at each site where hogs from one source are mixed with hogs from other sources. The records would have to be kept for two years and be available to USDA officials during normal business hours.

Under the proposal, if a federally inspected slaughterhouse did not comply with identification rules, USDA inspectors could order that swine carcasses be retained at the plant until laboratory tests confirmed the meat's wholesomeness.

In fiscal year 1986, more than 77 million hogs were slaughtered under federal inspection.

Two USDA agencies are involved with this proposal because it concerns the control of disease in farm animals, the safety of the meat supply and the transport and sale of swine. Participating agencies are the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, which is charged with preventing or controlling disease in animals raised for food, and the Food Safety and Inspection Service, which is responsible for inspecting meat and poultry to ensure safety.

The proposed rule change is scheduled to be published in the Feb. 3 Federal Register. Comments, an original and two copies, must be sent by April 4 to Steven B. Farbman, assistant director, Regulatory Coordination, APHIS, USDA, Room 728 Federal Bldg., 6505 Belcrest Rd., Hyattsville, Md., 20872.

Chester Farmers Honored As Conservationists

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

GUTHRIESVILLE — Two dairy farmers were honored last week as Chester County Soil Conservationists of the Year, Charles Harris, Chairman of Chester County Conservation District, awarded plaques to John R. St. John, Jr., Lincoln University, and John S. Smoker, Atglen, at Crops Day.

"This year we had two farmers who were equally outstanding in the conservation they had applied on their farms," Harris announced.

St. John's 180-acre family-operated farm in the lower Big Elk watershed south of New Londen was one of the early participants in the Chester County Chesapeake Bay Program. Cooperators in the District since 1970, the St. Johns have a 170-head Holstein herd.

St. John has installed a gravity flow manure pond, 77 acres of strip cropping, 1,682 feet of subsurface drainage and four grass waterways. Harris estimated that 85 percent of St. John's bay contract has been implemented.

Smoker milks approximately 40 head on his family-operated 76-acre home farm in the Atglen sub-watershed of Octorara Creek. He has installed 58 acres of strip cropping, 3,775 feet of diversions and two storm structures for water control. Prior to becoming a cooperator in 1984, Smoker installed a manure storage pond. His conservation plan is 95 per cent implemented, Harris estimated.

Harris commended all Chester County farmers who are applying and maintaining conservation on the farms, many with their own money. "I think they're doing a fine job," he stated.

Harris suggested that any farmer interested in technical assistance for an erosion problem or manure storage check with the Conservation District, Soil Conservation

John St. John (L) and John Smoker (R) are honored as Soil Conservationists of the Year by Charles Harris (center), Chairman of the Chester County Conservation District.

Elizabeth and T. Edwin Martin, West Grove, receive Bicentennial Farm recognition from District Conservationist Elbert Wells, U.S.S.C.S.

"Misty Pines" in West Marlborough Township has been in the Martin family since 1727. Edwin Martin has worked the farm for 71 of his 79 years and still milks nine head, he said.

Lebanon Farm Has Clean Water Award

Dorothy and John Birch own a 64 acre cash grain farm in Lawn, which is located in the southwestern corner of Lebanon County. The Birches rent the farm to Garry Maurer, a hog farmer from Rexmont. Over the last five years Maurer and the Birches have changed three large gullies into green, lush grassed waterways, put in contour strips, and applied a number of structural and cultural conservation practices.

Conservation practices installed include 2,500 feet of grassed waterways, 50 acres of well maintained contour strips, 10,000 feet of sub-surface drainage, 2,300 feet of underground outlet, 200 feet of diversions, 2 structures for water control, and applied conservation tillage and cover crops.

The Birches have been cooperators with the Lebanon County Conservation District since 1983 and have been involved in the Chesapeake Bay Program since 1986. The construction and installation of these conservation practices was performed by Manada Construction, who has been doing this service for the public for over 24 years in Lebanon, Lehigh, Dauphin, Lancaster, and Adams Counties.

The Garry Maurer and John & Dorothy Birch renter-landlord relationship shows that proper soil and water conservation practices result in saving your soil, boosting your yields, and preserving your valuable soil resource base for future generations. County commissioner Leather got together with persons from the conservation district and the construction service in front of the farm pond to honor this good work and relationship.

National Dairy Board Takes On Calcium Supplements

SAN FRANCISCO — America's dairy farmers are fighting back against the proliferation of heavily advertised products offering calcium as an additive or a pill. The National Dairy Board in February begins a new $6 million, year-long print campaign positioning dairy products as the natural way to get calcium.

The calcium campaign, created by McCann-Erickson/San Francisco, is targeted primarily to women 25-54. A series of seven ads points out the benefits of obtaining calcium from a natural source. The ads provide examples of simple dairy diets which can give a woman 100 percent of the recommended daily allowance of calcium.

The ads are breaking in the February issues of general interest, food, career, health, home, and women's service magazines. The 23 publications on the media buy include Readers' Digest, TV Guide, Bon Appetit, Working Woman, Prevention, Better Homes & Gardens and Good Housekeeping. One of the ads is a four-page gatefold.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers, was established by The Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983 to develop and administer a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education to strengthen the dairy industry position in the marketplace. This effort is financed by America's dairy farmers.

Menu Of Nutritional Management At Cooperator Meeting

GETTYSBURG — Dairymen were served a Grade A menu of nutritional management recommendations and updates on worming and foot problems at Agway's Annual Cooperator Meeting held here last week. Similar meetings were held in two other locations the southeast region of the state.

Dr. James Nocek, Director of Dairy and Livestock Research and Applied Technology, addressed the topic, "Feeding and Managing the High Producing Cow." He started his presentation noting that a cow's gestation-lactation cycle is divided into four parts and these are the four phases dairymen should gear their feeding program towards.

These four areas include early lactation when the body stores are being used for milk production, peak milk production when feed intake peaks, a decline in production when the body stores are regained for the next lactation, and finally, the dry period.

While Nocek strongly endorsed a total mixed ration feeding system, he acknowledged that different management conditions may call for a different feeding approach. However, regardless of how the cows are fed several recommendations still stand.

Nocek stressed that energy is the key factor in balancing rations for high producing cows. Stated Nocek, "You must get enough energy, or carbohydrates, into the cow's rumen. If you don't have enough, then she can't utilize her protein efficiently. If you have too much, the protein is wasted. The ultimate feeding system is one in which there is a synchronization of rumen available protein and carbohydrates."

Other management techniques Nocek urged the audience to consider were to maintain a 12-12 hour milking schedule rather than a 10-14 interval, using superior genetics, 3x a day milking, and the use of bovine somatatrophin.

Dr. Carl Johnson, DVM, with the research department of the Pfizer Company, gave dairymen an update entitled, "How to Strategically Use Wormers on the Dairy."

Stated Johnson, "If we can effectively time the use of these products (wormers), we can break the life cycle of these parasites... The hallmark of a strategic deworming program is a spring worming program."

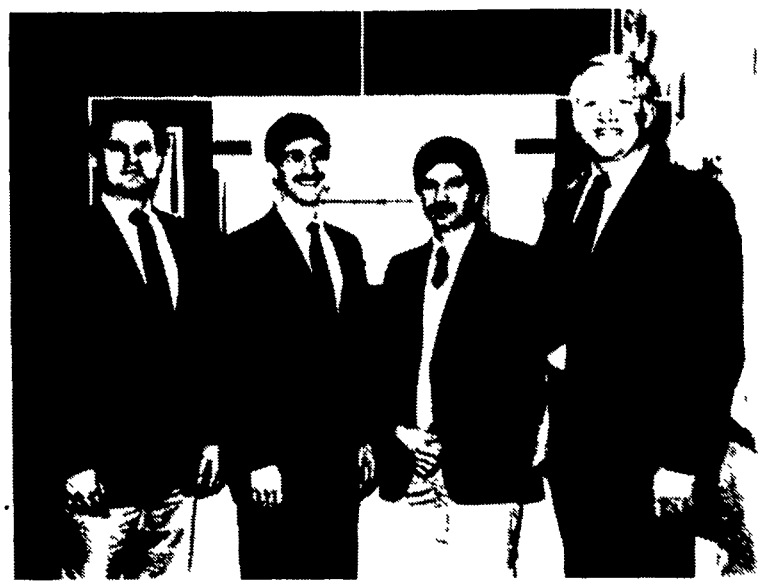
Johnson explained that a spring deworming program helps cattle minimize the effect of residual worms on the pasture from the previous season, plus it aids in reducing re-infestation. Also, spring deworming allows the life-cycle of the worms to be interrupted before the warmer months when larvae infestations multiply more rapidly due to the warmer temperatures.

Johnson recommended deworming cattle when they are put out to pasture, again one month after they have been on pasture, in the fall, and prior to freshening.

While Johnson ranked first-calf fresheners as the most important to deworm, he noted that dairymen can benefit from whole-herd deworming plus regular deworming of all dairy herd replacements.

"Using Feed Additives Intelligently," was the topic of the day's final speaker Dr. Normand St. Pierre. After relating the different types of products on the market and their chemical reactions, St. Pierre told dairymen that they must measure the value of a feed additive by four criteria.

He labeled these criteria the 4 R's. These include: 1. Does the additive yield positive results? 2. Is the response what you anticipated or are your cows having any negative reaction to the additive? 3. Is the feed additive's claims backed by reliable research? 4. Does the additive justify its costs with positive net returns?



Dairymen across the southeastern corner of the state were updated on their feeding and management techniques by these Agway specialist- (l-r) Dr. Carl Johnson, Dr. Normand St. Pierre, Dr. James Nocek, and District Agway Manager Roy Brenneman.

Student Chapter To Hold Farm Toy Show

DOYLESTOWN — Toy collecting is a growing hobby in which whole families participate. Farm and antique toy collectors from Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York will meet at the Delaware Valley College Student Center on Saturday, February 27, 1988.

The public are admitted from 10:00 a.m. on to observe displays, negotiate purchases, or discuss collections. At 4:00 p.m. an auction of consigned toys will be conducted with bidding open to all. Admission for children under 5 is free; 6 to 14, $1.00 and adults above 14, $2.00.

Farm toy collectors tend to concentrate on different sizes, brands or time periods. One collections will be John Deere toys of the 1930s including both horse-drawn and tractor-drawn. Others will include many brands and models popular in the 60s and 70s.

This activity is sponsored by the National Agri-Marketing Association, Del Val student chapter. The college is located on U.S. Route 202, southwest of Doylestown, Pennsylvania. Specific information can be obtained from Maryann Vogt at (215) 345-6314.

Specialist Says Alfalfa Costs $270-$280 Per Acre

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

GUTHRIESVILLE — On the average, the cost of growing alfalfa in Pennsylvania over the past six years has been $270-$280 an acre, according to Dr. Sid Bosworth, Penn State Extension Forage Specialist. In the southeastern part of the state, average crop yields are between six and six and one-half tons. Bosworth addressed 144 Chester County farmers on the economics of alfalfa production at Crops Day last Friday.

"Prorated establishment costs, which can't be ignored, run about $40 an acre. The cost that has steadily and consistently been climbing over the last three years is machinery ownership," he said. Bosworth included machinery for harvesting, spraying and mowing and tractor costs for both establishment and maintenance.

"I want to make the point that it's probably good to sit down and calculate what you're spending on your crops," Bosworth suggested. "I can give you average figures (from the Alfalfa Growers Program) but they may not apply at all to your program."

"The real challenge is to combine a good crop program with good dairy management," the specialist said. For high producing cows you have to have high quality forage, according to Bosworth, who added that you can't substitute grain for poor quality forage.

"When we look at the factor that influences cost and quality most, it's cutting management," said Bosworth. Cutting alfalfa prebloom is best, he stated. "Letting it go to flower or mid-bloom... we know we lose in protein concentration. Fiber goes up... and digestible dry matter goes down very dramatically... and as a result milk production can go down. When I think of forage profitability, this is probably the first key."

Although midwestern research reports successful reseeding of alfalfa by killing or merely removing the tops of the previous crop in the fall, Bosworth advises continuing to rotate for a couple of years. "One of the top plant pathologists at Penn State is convinced that even though we can overcome (autotoxicity) we're not going to overcome the problem of disease buildup."

Bosworth also outlined successful alfalfa establishment practices. Managing problem weeds and new herbicides for alfalfa and corn were topics covered by Dr. John Yocum, Penn State Senior Agronomy Research Associate. Penn State Extension Entomologist Dr. Dennis Calvin spoke on alfalfa insect control and also controlling insects in stored grain. Chester County Extension Dairy Agent David Swartz updated the farmers on chemical safety.

Fair. It was an early promoter of it. I got to know S.T. Wood, who was a pioneer in selling Holsteins and through him I learned to know R. Austin Backus." In the early 1940s Groff worked with Backus on a sale that Backus says Groff suggested calling Garden Spot. Groff says, "I don't remember."

In any case the first sale went pretty well, and, according to Groff, Backus said, "Do you want to try another one?"

Eventually there were over 300 Garden Spot sales, with the original ones being held once a month "on the third Thursday," at the C. M. Brubaker farm near Willow Street. Groff says nearly 200 sales were held there, adding, "I solicited, and Backus would get some acquaintances of his to find additional cattle."

The sales always featured 50 to 70 cows, but sometimes the number would go as high as 100. The sales were responsible for several millions of dollars worth of cattle, which went as far away as the Midwest. Eventually many of these cattle found their way to California. Groff says, "They could both buy and sell. That was the marketplace."

Groff remembers the 100th sale, for which they worked hard "to build up a feature and try to select a special quality of animals." Because of its special nature, they erected a tent outside the barn where the sale was usually held. A storm came up, and it became evident that the tent was going to collapse. While Backus was able to escape onto the back of his truck, quite a few people, including Groff, were trapped under the fallen tent. Groff says he recalls that a woman in a wheelchair was trapped with them, and he and others held chairs above her to keep the tent, and the ensuing hailstones, from hitting her. He says with a small laugh, "That was quite an experience."

Actually, Groff's life became a series of experiences which took him across the country to sales and conventions. With six sons and a daughter to help with the work at home, Groff traveled considerably looking for quality cattle. He has been in all but two our 50 states.

He helped select cattle for about eight national convention sales, including one held in Harrisburg in 1950. An account of that convention in a local newspaper states that Groff traveled 20,000 miles and spent six months making selections for the sale. That convention sale averaged $1242.

He also remembers the national convention held in Philadelphia in 1976, when the sale was held at the Guernsey Pavilion in Lancaster. He still has the tri-corner hat supplied by Bill Nichol to those who helped in the sale ring, and they wore vests to complement the hats.

He truly enjoyed traveling to the conventions, both state and national, and he says he often could identify the states from which delegates came but not the delegates' names. He says he has some embarrassment because people often could identify him due to his prominent position with the sales, while he might have difficulty identifying them.

He laughs as he said, "It took me about a week to get over the conventions. They were always in late May or early June and people would laugh about going home and resting up by making hay." He said the conventions were strenuous because of all the things "that occupy your thoughts." His wife Helen managed to go along to some of the national conventions. She recalls her first trip was to the convention in Madison, Wisconsin in the 1940s, and her youngest child was four at the time. She says it was difficult to leave her children, and Earl says, "On the way to Strasburg I thought I was going to have to turn around and go home."

Helen recognized that Groff seemed to thrive on his very busy life, and he gives her much credit for her role as wife, mother, and the one who "held the fort at home." He says he attended all of the national conventions from 1933 to the mid-1950s. He served as president of both the state and county Holstein Associations.

Groff took on another leadership role in the early forties when he helped to organize the Southeastern Pennsylvania Artificial Breeders Cooperative, (SPABC), now known as Atlantic Breeders Cooperative. He remembers Lancaster County Agent "Dutch" Bucher stopping by his farm while they were stripping tobacco to suggest to Earl, "We ought to start an artificial breeding unit." By then First Pennsylvania Cooperative had already been established in Lewisburg.

Groff had done some experimenting with artificial breeding on his own, through techniques taught in the "Graham course," with the semen being inserted in capsule form. He was convinced of its potential, and agreed to form a committee "to go into it in earnest."

He recalls the skepticism which many farmers felt toward the new technology, and at least one man warned him that he might harm all the success he had achieved in his own herd by experimenting with this strange idea.

Today, Groff says, "We were doing it for everybody. Just a year or two before my cousin had been killed by a bull, and "Pennsylvania Farmer" ran stories on the many dairyman who had been killed."

Unconditionally, Groff credits the AI industry with "really setting up the excellence of the Holstein breed over any other breed."

He admits to having reservations about the technology of embryo transplants, but adds, "They are doing wonderful things. The challenge is to pay attention so that they do not narrow the genetic base."

Earl takes clippers to a bull which is about to be shipped to Puerto Rico. Holding the bull are sons J. Wade, partially hidden, and Eugene.

"Yarba Della Thyrsa II" was a three time winner of the Grand Championship at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg. Here she is shown as she looked during those winning years in the 1940's.

Groff served nearly 20 years as president of SPABC, and was active as head of the Holstein sire selection committee, traveling the state looking for promising bulls. He is credited with helping to find the famous Lauxmont Admiral Lucifer and Ivanhoe, as well as many other bulls which had a strong impact on Holstein genetics. Traveling with General Manager David Yoder and others, Groff says, "Many a night we would not get home until almost morning."

He said the selection committee always looked for both production and type, adding, "We had to be concerned about keeping a broad-based genetic base." He mentioned Pieterje, Ormsby and Fobes as bloodlines he felt confident looking for. He added, "I did a lot of soliciting for securing bulls and membership.

He bred some bulls of his own, and remembers one, especially, which was sent to Puerto Rico. Many years later he and his wife traveled in Puerto Rico, and received great satisfaction in seeing progeny from the bull.

Groff always enjoyed showing cows and was a frequent winner because of his herd's superior type. He participated in the Pennsylvania State Farm Show for years, but perhaps his most famous cow was "Yarba Della Thrysa II" who was named grand champion Holstein there in 1942, 1947 and 1948. Groff says, "I had a lot of the Della bloodlines." He was referring to Dunlogging Della Maid, from whom he had many daughters.

Groff's leadership was not just away from home. He served on the Soil Conservation committee and on the Lancaster County Planning Commission. He also was a frequent delegate to Interstate Milk Producers Cooperative (now Atlantic Dairy Cooperative). He remembers that his father was an early member of the cooperative.

On the small farm where he grew up, Groff recalls that they sold cream. "We had a separator in the basement and hung the cream can in the well. A collector came and picked up the cream twice a week." In his youth, they milked from 10-15 cows, of course by hand. He said his family had milking machines, quite early, however and though he doesn't remember exactly when they got them, he said they had them when he started on his own in 1926.

He participated in Advanced Registry, before the Dairy Herd Improvement Associations came into being. He recalls putting in an old steam boiler, and adds, "I had my own steam-driven centrifuge in the basement." The tester, sent from the State College, stayed overnight and did the testing in the home. Groff said he has a set of blue books, going back to book one of the Holstein registry. The early registry books were offered for sale at the dispersal of the Lauxmont herd, and he bid on them. He points out, "I didn't pay much for them."

Earl also remembers a period of being on owner-sampler records, and having the samples picked up by then county agent, Bucher.

One cow that produced an outstanding record for him was Pieterje Ormasby Mooie, with a record of 23,293 pounds, 802.6 pounds fat on three times a day milking. An earlier cow he had purchased as a five-year-old produced 27,000 pounds of milk. Groff says he paid $300 for that cow, "a high price at the time."

In 1952, he was chosen as a Master Farmer, an award which meant a lot to him. His barn was not designed for more than 40 cows, which placed a natural limit on his milking herd, and he often housed young stock at other farms. His home farm was originally 116 acres, near Strasburg.

Two of the Groff children are in farming today, J. Wade and Ken, who farms on the original home farm.

Since his active involvement in the Holstein industry, Groff and his wife have gone on a safari in Africa, traveled to Europe, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Bahamas. Although arthritis keeps him home, Groff says he has many fond memories of his active years with Holsteins.

Earl Groff's name is instantly recognizable to large numbers of Holstein enthusiasts over many decades. His leadership met the challenge of changing technologies, and his eye for excellent cattle set high standards for the Holstein breed.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

I speak to you as one dairy farmer to another. You have seen the headlines.

"Price Support Level Cut by 50 cents per Hundredweight"
"Gramm Rudman Costs Dairy Farmers Additional Assessment"
"Milk Production is on the Increase"
"Major Implement Manufacturer Raises Prices on New Equipment"
"Government Wants to Stop Subsidizing Farm Programs"
"Fertilizer Prices up in 1988"

Where do all these headlines leave us dairy farmers? In dire straits, that's where! We, as a dairy industry, are not united.

I, Charles E. Wismer, Jr., have always shipped milk to a local dairy and for many years was an independent shipper. I still think like an independent, but times are changing. Many independent markets are no longer around, and the government is changing gears on us. The government says let the milk price float at the world market price at around $8.00 per hundredweight. California dairymen say they are willing to produce milk at $9.00 per hundredweight. What they are really saying is they can ruin the PA dairy farmer, and then take over the market.

What is the answer to all of this? - RCMA, over-order pricing. It does not raise the consumer price and maintains the farmers' price. It is not a government program so it does not create high paying jobs. It is run by both independents and

Adams Co. Has Dairy Day Progam

BY
GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

YORK SPRINGS — The Adams County Cooperative Extension Service and Atlantic Breeders Cooperative combined their efforts here Thursday evening, February 11th, to provide local dairymen with a more comprehensive Adams County Dairy Day program.

The meeting commensed with an evening meal at the York Spring Firehall. It was followed by a detailed explanation of tax changes regarding pre-production costs for raising herd replacements presented by Roland Freund, PSU Regional Farm Management Specialist, and Atlantic's District Meeting.

Freund noted that the 1986 Tax Reform Act which was to simplify the tax structure, has complicated the picture in agriculture. One example of this is that previously dairymen deducted the costs of raising their replacements each year. Any proceeds from cattle sold had previously been treated as capital gains in the year in which they were sold.

Freund explained, "The 1986 Tax Reform Act decided that it was time to get tough on business. Now dairymen must decide how to handle all their preproduction costs up to freshing. And, since the IRS has determined that life begins at conception, those costs must also include insemination costs or ET transfer work. He must also allot a portion of fixed costs such as building repair and insurance to his heifer raising costs."

The discussion went on to outline the effects of either capitalizing those costs or choosing the modified acceleration cost recovery system when filing your taxes. In the final analyses Freund summarized that the best choice of these two alternatives depended on each dairymen's individual situation.

Freund cited two examples when it may be more advantage to capitalize these expenses. One was a dairymen who planned to sell his herd in the next 4-5 years. Capitalization would increase his taxable income now and would increase his social security basis.

Another situation where capitalization may be helpful is a young person purchasing a herd with the cattle still on depreciation. Since he presently will have more deductions than he can use, capitalization of the entire herd would help take advantage of the extra deductions.

During Atlantic's portion of the meeting, two dairymen were recognized for having herds that were at least 10 percent above the state average for milk or butterfat production and more than two-thirds of the cows and progeny of Atlantic sires. These awards were presented by Scott Osborne, Atlantic's Field Supervisor for this area.

Those honored were Milton Hoffman, Gettysburg with a RHA on 46.1 cows of 19,602 pounds of milk and 754 pounds of butterfat. Hoffman's herd has 91 percent of the cows sired by Atlantic sires.

Also honored was the herd of Roy A. Weaner, Gettysburg. Weaners herd is 73 percent Atlantic sired and averaged 19,663 pounds of milk and 703 pounds of butterfat on 56.7 cows.

The meeting concluded with a narrated slide presentation presented by management representative Gary Heckman. It reviewed the basic principles of cattle breeding and highlighted several of Atlantic's current sires. Heckman emphasized that genetic levels have increased on their proven sires while average semen costs are lower than one year ago.

HIGH DISEASE RESISTANT AND HIGH YIELDING ALFALFAS
- PINNACLE
- PRO CUT

Chances are, you'll replace this heifer before you replace this alfalfa stand.

Like animals, your alfalfa's most productive years are numbered.

Once past its prime, a cow or alfalfa can cost you more than it's worth.

That's why it pays to put your money into things that are bred to perform over the years—like Pioneer® brand alfalfa varieties.

Pioneer varieties provide long stand life. So, while some alfalfa stands begin to thin out and weeds begin to take over, stands of Pioneer varieties remain thick and leafy—giving you more protein for more good years.

For alfalfa stands that weather the years well, talk to your Pioneer sales representative about Pioneer brand alfalfa.

526

One of the most winterhardy varieties on the market. It features outstanding resistance to Bacterial Wilt, good resistance to Fusarium Wilt and produces impressive yields. The first cutting is a bit later than with 531 or 532.

531

Tolerates Anthracnose infestations and fights off Fusarium and Bacterial Wilt. First cutting is early, and the fine stemmed, leafy plants bounce back fast after harvest.

For a longer, better stand.

Save during Pioneer Days (Feb. 22-27 only). Take advantage of special discounts, plus a $10 coupon from Pioneer to get 526 for just $126.90/ bag, and 531 for $129.72/bag.

ture has gone sour, but because the government will pay out less to farmers.

In conclusion, Moore said, "Good managers will make some money in 1988. Maybe not as much as was made a year and a half ago, but it's going to be a good year for pork producers." And when pressed by a question from the floor, Moore said that 1989 should be an even better year because beef production is expected to continue to decline.

PORK PROMOTION WORKS

Mike Walser, from the National Pork Producers Council, said that the recent Pork Fest promotion with Acme Markets and Wilson Foods increased pork sales by 75 percent during the three-month campaign. The Other White Meat campaign has increased awareness to the point of a 56 percent recall on this campaign slogan in targeted areas.

The "America's Cut," that was designed to upgrade the image of pork by creating a standard cut, has 30,000 retail stores participating. This boneless centercut pork chop that's 1¼ -1½ inches thick with less than a ½ -inch external fat cover is now trademarked. A consumer can go into any participating store and know what piece of pork will be in the America's Cut package.

But Walser asked the producers to help police this program. "Whenever you go into your supermarket," Walser said, "check the meat counter and make sure the pork cut sold under the America's Cut label meets the standards. Only if this cut is kept uniform will the program generate continued sales," Walser said. "These programs are where all your check-off dollars go," Walser said. "Your money goes to successful programs like these."

CREDIT MANAGER REPORTS

Scott Owen, President of Lancaster Farm Credit, said he personally believes the hog industry has a bright future in the mid-Atlantic states. "This is true," he said, "as long as growth is logical and management is precise."

Along with the market fluctuations, the hog farmer must also consider the disease factor "Are you ready to absorb these possible losses if they come your way," he asked.

Owen's outlined the strategy for successfully borrowing money. It includes meeting the needs of the lender as well as the farmer.

"Consider yourself a salesman," Owen said. "All successful salesmen have considered the transaction before they make it. The farmer wants the money and the lender wants information. So the challenge is communication.

Hopefully each party can understand the other's needs and begin to meet them. "As a loan officer, if we can't make you successful, we are not doing our job," Owen said. You are in the pork manufacturing business. We need to look at your financial and production management capabilities. What is your progress over last year? Are you trustworthy?

"Trustworthiness is the number one factor," Owen said. "If I need to go back on your collateral, I'd rather not make the loan. Your repayment capacity will make or break the loan."

FEEDER PIG REGULATIONS

Of special interest to feeder pig producers was the outline of possible regulations for pseudorabies by Max A. Van Buskirk Jr., Director of the State Bureau of Animal Industry. The Swine Health Committee has recommended to the state that Pennsylvania have a similar regulation to the Illinois program. In this program feeder pigs will not be allowed to move into or within the state unless they come from qualified herds with proper testing and certification. The proposal is in the drafting stage and will be published for comment.

"Producers should stay in touch with the state organization to follow the progress of this regulation," Buskirk said. The state director urged farmers to express their opinions on the published regulation when it is available.

Chore-Time's ULTRAFLO® feeder can free you from your chains

We have probably been too modest up to now about the merits of our new generation ULTRAFLO® cage feeder vs. the old style chain feeders some of our competitors are still trying to sell you. In fact, the only negative comments about our feeder come from our competition, not our customers. So we would like to point out the bare facts:

FEED SAVINGS On-farm results show a feed savings of ½ lb per 100 birds per day – over $10,000 per year savings on a 100,000-bird house Year after year

TROUBLE-FREE DESIGN: Our feeder has only two moving parts – the one-piece auger plus each drive wheel, their chain has more Our corners are heavy 12 ga zinc plated tubing for long life, their corners have a reputation for trouble and short life

PROVEN DESIGN Over 10 million birds are already on our feeder worldwide Also, it was proven in 5 years of on-farm testing before introduction

EASY ADAPTABILITY Ours adapts easily to existing cage systems you may already have Or choose from our wide selection of cage styles

5-YEAR WARRANTY Ours gives you a 5-year warranty on auger and trough Theirs doesn't In fact, their dealers derive a large percentage of their income from parts sales Ours don't

MICROPROCESSOR CONTROL Our control lets you program feeding time to the second, to match the exact time of one circuit Control number of feedings, time of each feeding – also 10-second "Stimulation Cycles" between feedings, to minimize separation, and improve your birds feed intake

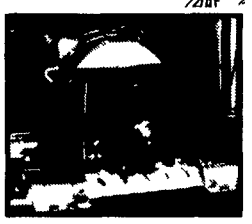
HI-GRADING OF FEED Our auger travels at 80 FPM so birds are limited from eating until it stops, birds will hi-grade feed from chain feeders, causing uneven nutrition

REMIXING FEED Our auger slowly revolves, remixing old and new feed, theirs leaves most old feed to get stale

BILLED-OUT FEED Our auger acts as a grid to prevent birds from raking, piling and throwing out feed neither chain or disk systems prevent feed waste

COST SAVINGS Ours saves vast amounts of energy costs since it s easier to propel and runs only half as long as theirs

LOW MAINTENANCE With our 5-year warranty on auger and 20 ga trough (one competitor has only 22 ga) – plus no corner wheel mechanisms to wear out – ours saves you maintenance costs



SIMPLE OPERATION "Push-pull" Power Units with ⅓ or ½ HP motor are located in a cage, have hardened steel gears for trouble-free operation

Bedford Fair Sets New Competition

BEDFORD — Draft animal competition, at halter and in hitch, will be a new attraction at the 155th Bedford County Fair here Aug. 8-13.

At a planning meeting last week Fair Vice President John Holbert noted that to some grandparents, the offering may not be new, but draft animals have not competed here in recent times.

Classes will be included for foals, 3-year-olds and younger, 4-year-olds and older, mare and foal, best matched teams, best unmatched team, all at halter. Demonstration classes, with cart or wagon, will include best performing single hitch, best performing team hitch and best performing multi-team hitch. In performance classes only the animals will be evaluated; harness and cart or wagon will not be considered.

Fred and Linda Sell of Everett RD 1 will serve as superintendents of the new deparment which will be limited to Bedford County-owned entries.

"I think we'll be turning them away," Sell said of potential entries. Before the offering was formally announced, Sell said he'd received inquiries regarding 24 animals, and plans now call for a tent to be erected on the fairgrounds for them, with space for just 16 stalls.

The Sells themselves raise Belgians, keep a pair of working Standardbreds and have driven their draft animals in numerous parades.

Another addition to the Fair's agricultural agenda next summer will be a dairy judging contest for youths. Scott Mohr of Bakers Summit is chairman. Previously, only a livestock judging contest was offered.

A new entertainment attraction will draw from the agricultural sector. Robinson's Racing Pigs, indeed, pigs that race, will perform five times each day. The animals have been featured on national television and in national news magazines. One area stockman suggested that spectators who see the racing pigs might be further attracted to the agricultural side of the fair.

At the planning meeting, Fair President Thomas Reiley and Manager Jake Hoover praised efforts of volunteers who superintend departments and work on committees without remuneration, saying that the Fair couldn't be staged without them.

Conference Set

by the Honorable Boyd Wolff, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture.

More than forty commercial exhibitors will make up the Trade Show. A variety of topics relating to corn production and marketing will be addressed by speakers from Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, and Pennsylvania. Included will be: Varel Bailey, Past President of the National Corn Growers' Association (from Iowa); Herman Warsaw, Illinois grower who has consistantly produced more than 300 bushels of corn per acre; John Sutton, Lovatt Company gain buyer; Dr. Gary Smith, University of Maryland agricultural engineer; Dr. Robert Hartzler, Penn State weed scientist; and a "panel" of top-notch Pennsylvania corn growers. "Late registrations" may be made at the conference site between 8:00 and 10:00 a.m., Tuesday, March 1. The Conference/Trade Show is open to all interested persons.

Adams Farmers Talks About Gas Tax

ORRTANNA — "We can't afford to pay for goofs made by the federal government," John J. Hess, President, of the Adams County Farmers' Association, said today in relationship to the 15-cent a gallon excise tax which farmers are exempt, but being forced to pay and then seeking a refund.

The county leader was referring to a provision of the recently enacted Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, which requires farmers to pay a 15-cent per gallon excise tax on diesel fuel that they are not required to pay on off-highway agricultural use. Congress switched the collection point for the diesel fuel excise tax from the retail to the wholesale level beginning April 1.

So, now the farmer is required to pay the 15-cent tax up front, and later file for a refund either on a quarterly or annual basis. The farmer qualifies for a quarterly refund if he pays at least $1,000 in a quarter in diesel fuel taxes, otherwise he can only file annually for the refund.

"The federal government is telling us to pay the tax, let it keep it for three months to a year, and then file for a refund," said Hess. "That might make sense in government, but it doesn't in farming.

"In the state this congressional 'goof' could cost farmers more than $10 million annually," he explained, "which is similar to a $10 million loan to the federal government ... interest free.

"We are urging our members to write to their U.S. congressmen and senators to support the repeal of that provision of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987," Hess said. There are presently five bills in the U.S. House or Senate that would correct the situation according to Hess. These bills include S 2003, HR 3844, HR 3850, HR 3865, HR 3866, and HR 3881.

The county farm leader explained that the law allows the U.S. Treasury secretary to exempt certain groups of users such as diesel-powered trains, commercial aviation, state and local governments from paying the tax at the time of purchase.

The Adams County Farmers' Association is affiliated with the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation. It is a voluntary, countywide farm organization.

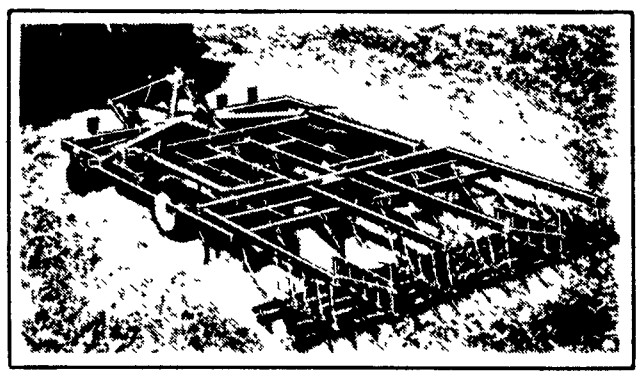
BRILLION SOIL GROOMER

A GOOD TOOL, NOW EVEN BETTER!



With 18" discs that throw soil inward to reduce ridging

Brillion's new design disc arrangement reduces ridging, leaving the field in a more level condition. 18" dia. disc blades, preset at an 8° angle move the soil inward, cutting and burying residue. Field cultivator shanks mix the soil for incorporating chemicals. Leveling harrows complete the incorporation process and groom the soil. Because it performs several tillage operations in one pass, it saves time and fuel and reduces labor and investment in equipment — it's the ideal CONSERVATION FARMING tool.

The Brillion Soil Groomer features a "Quick-Lift" master-slave hydraulic system for fast, level machine raising; 42" spray zone between the discs and shanks; 6" and 9" shank spacing; walking beam axles and a choice of spike tooth drags or dual reel roller harrows.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

-Pennsylvania milk production in January set a new record for that month, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

But the 54 million pounds of milk from Pennsylvania farms increased the proportion of milk used for manufacturing purpose and occasioned an average decline of two cents a hundred pounds to farmers, a Federal-State survey showed.

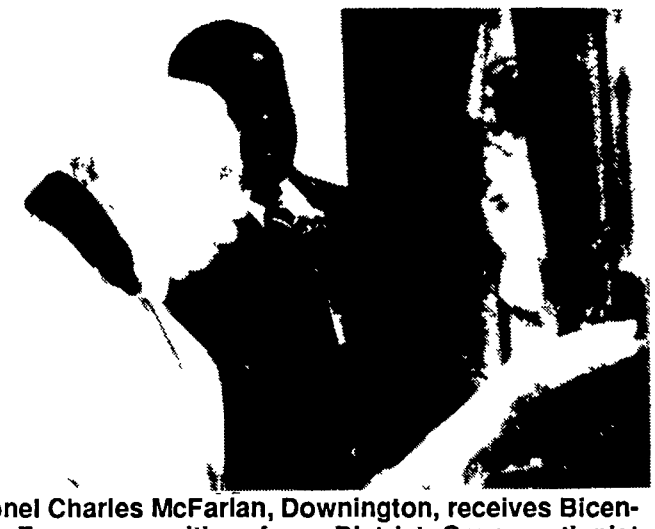
The larger milk output for January resulted from a higher feeding rate per cow than a year ago when production was below normal due to low quality hay from the 1956 rainy season.

- A record-breaking snowfall beginning Saturday isolated hundreds of Lancaster County farm families and caused thousands of dollars worth of damage in the County.

The snow, measured as deep as 20 inches at numerous spots, was bad enough in itself, but it was further complicated by high winds blowing up drifts several feet high.

Hardest hit were dairymen who had no way to deliver their milk to city dairies. The advent of use of the bulk tank further complicated the situation by precluding the possibility of delivering milk in cans by use of a tractor and sled or by other conveyance.

- A trophy for top egg quality in the white class of the 3rd Western New York Random Sample Test has been awarded to Babcock Poultry Farm, Ithaca, N.Y., by Cooperative G.L.F. Exchange, Inc.



Colonel Charles McFarlan, Downington, receives Bicentennial Farm recognition from District Conservationist Elbert Wells, United States Soil Conservation Service.

McFarlan, whose farm just north of Downingtown has been in his family since 1747, told the Crops Day audience that he was surprised to see so many farmers in attendance. Considering the pressure he is receiving from developers, he said, he didn't think there would be that many farms left in Chester County.

Chester Farmers Honored

Service or any of the agriculture-related organizations in West Chester.

In two full years of Chesapeake Bay funding, the Conservation District has had 57 applicants. It has 18 signed contracts, mostly with dairy farmers interested in manure storage, according to Harris.

"For 1988 our money has been cut back considerably in Chester County," the chairman said. "It's very likely we'll only be able to process three or four contracts this year."

The Farm That Solved The Wilkin's Midlife Crisis

By Barbara Miller
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

DUSHORE — "We started this farm in our midlife crisis," jokes pretty blue-eyed blone, Nancy Wilkins. "While some couples go their separate ways," she continued, "we started a new career."

Nancy was 35 and her husband, Ron, 40, in 1976 when they purchased what is now Wil-Stock Farm complete with 18 purebred polled Herefords. At that time they were complete novices to farming.

Now, according to Nancy, they are the largest seed stock producer in their area of performance test cattle on Guide Lines, "Guide Lines is to the beef industry what DHIA is to the milk industry," Nancy explains. They currently have 60 head of registered polled Herefords, a highly pedigreed service bull valued at $10,000, two Benchmark dams, and two bulls currently on performance test at Penn State. A previous bull ranked first on a recent performance test at Penn State. They own 225 acres and rent an additional 170 acres.

After 24 years working for a transit company in Montgomery County, with much of it spent in an executive capacity, Ron Wilkins decided it was time for a change. So, Nancy says, they began looking for a farm. An ad in a Sullivan County paper spotted by their son, Drew, led them to purchase their present place.

Although they bought the farm in 1976, it wasn't until April 1977 that Nancy and their two children, Drew, and Melissa, moved to their new home. For the next year Ron commuted from Montgomery County to the farm on weekends. He eventually found employment at Taylor Packing Co., Inc., Wyalusing, where he presently serves as Director of Personnel and Transportation. "Ron decided he could run a parttime beef operation and continue to hold down a full-time job as well," Nancy explained.

The Wilkins' farm experience at the time of their move to Sullivan County was practically nil. As a teenager, Ron had worked on a farm as a hired hand for a time.

"I never even had any pets when I was growing up," Nancy recalls and she remembers visiting a farm only one time during her childhood.

Much of the Wilkins' current success is due to Ron's older brother, Bob Wilkins, a dairy farmer from Saxton, on whom they relied heavily for advice. Nancy also mentions Donn Laudermilch, their veterinarian.

"You should have seen the phone bills when we first moved here," she exclaims.

Presently, Nancy considers the Herefords her pet project, but when they began farming, she says, she never had any intention of getting involved with the cattle. Ron and Drew, a ninth grader at the time, took care of the stock. But Nancy soon learned that a typical farming crisis doesn't wait until everyone is home to cope with the situation.

Nancy's first encounter with the cows occurred when she was home alone soon after they'd moved in. Glancing out her kitchen window one morning she was surprised to see the cows had left the pasture and were heading for the pond and the highway beyond. She rushed outside where, despite her inexperience at handling cattle, she successfully herded them back to the pasture. It gave her a good feeling to have accomplished that, she says, and she traces her interest in the cows back to that episode when she was forced to get involved.

Before her move to the farm Nancy probably couldn't have given an accurate description of a polled Hereford to anyone. Yet today, Nancy enthusiastically discusses their polled Hereford operation by producing records and reeling off facts and figures with a relish.

But putting the cows back in the pasture was a small accomplishment compared to what Nancy and her family had yet to learn about raising cattle.

The first cow that calved after they took over the farm completely cast her withers in the middle of a two-foot February snowstorm. Just Drew and Nancy were home at the time. It was hours before the vet was able to come and he arrived then Nancy recalls, because Drew rescued him from a snowbank.

Nancy says she can still see her 15-year-old son, totally unfamiliar with the situation, helping the vet put everything back into place in the cow. Consulting with her brother-in-law later, she learned that in all his years of dairy farming, he'd never had a cow cast her withers. Despite everything, Nancy says, the cow lived and weaned a nice calf.

But the Wilkins had yet another obstacle to overcome if their farm was to prosper. Shortly after they began farming they discovered their cattle, although unregistered purebreds, were very much inbred. This prevented the cattle from achieving their potential weights. The situation came to light one day when a potential buyer walked out in disgust because of the extremely small size of a weaned calf. Nancy discovered later that the calf's weight was about half of what it should have been at that age.

Before long the Wilkins remedied that situation. In the fall of '77 they purchased eight weaned heifers from a registered breeder which did very well for them. The next spring the breeder offered to sell them his remaining herd of polled Herefords because he was planning to retire. To make room for their new herd the Wilkins sold their remaining unregistered cattle. By the spring of 1978 the Wilkins family owned a total of 45 head of registered purebred polled herefords.

They have increased the size of their herd until today they have 60 animals which after spring calving will swell until they have approximately 90 head of cattle. Nancy notes they prefer to keep most of their calves through the winter.

"Fifty-five percent of our business is commercial beef and 25 percent is repeat customers," Nancy says with satisfaction.

In 1979, two years after they began farming Wil-Stock Farm they enrolled in Guide Lines, a performance program for breeders. The Guide Lines program is used for herd improvement much as a dairy farmer uses his DHIA records. The program entails keeping records of such things as birth weights, weaning date and weights and other data that compares one animal with another.

The Wilkins use artificial insemination and a bull to breed their cows. In recent years, Nancy says, because they have Butt, a quality bull, they have been using natural methods much of the time. Butt, or Dunwalke Somerset, was sired by BTCL Domina 44M out of Dunwalk Victra 75N, a good trophy and doner dam in a prestigious corporate herd.

"Butt has been valued at $10,000," Nancy states. "He's the most correct (by conformation) and one of the nicest bulls on the farm. His birthweight was 91 pounds and his weaning weight was 750 pounds and he has a 6+ frame."

A couple years ago, Nancy adds, Butt's full sister placed first in her class at the Polled Hereford Association National Sale. At a later farm production sale one quarter interest in her was purchased for $28,000.

Drew, the Wilkins' son, who is also employed fulltime at Taylor Packing, Inc., is very much involved in the farm. He owns eight or nine cattle within their herd and is the owner of Genie Romino, a cow which recently received a Gold Benchmark Dam award this year from the American Polled Hereford Association. Genie and P.J., also designated a Benchmark Dam, were two Wil-Stock Farm cows among the 814 elite dams winning this high honor for being the breed's most efficient and consistent producing females.

Any day now the cows will begin calving, signalling the start of Nancy's favorite season on the farm.

"I wait for Spring each year. Really and truly, there is nothing more reassuring about the life cycle or more exciting than seeing a cow have a calf," she proclaims enthusiastically.

The Wilkins' cattle calve from middle February to middle April. Then from the first of May through July the bull is turned in the pasture with the cows.

Nancy explains they prefer the cows to calve in February rather than in June because the calves get a double boost. They are not only getting extra milk from their mothers, but are soon old enough to eat the grass themselves. By the end of October, the calves are weaned from their mothers. An average polled Hereford calf this size may weigh in the neighborhood of 750 pounds.

During the past eleven years the Wilkins have not only added acreage to their farm and increased the number of Herefords they raise, but have worked to increase the individual size, and therefore, quality, of their animals. Their cows now range in size from a frame 4 to a frame 6 which means as a yearling the cow could weigh 1250 pounds. The frame measurement, Nancy explains, refers to the skeletal size of the animal with the larger numbers corresponding to the larger skeletal size of an animal. By way of comparison, Nancy observe, the cows they purchased with the farm were size 3 frames. She feels for their type of operation and for the customers they serve they have almost reached the optimum sized animal.

Since Ron and Drew work fulltime, the only crops they raise, according to Nancy, are oats and hay. They buy their corn. Four years ago they went to 3 foot by 4 foot round bales which in combination with a hay rack designed by Ron necessitates feeding their animals hay on a twice weekly basis.

In addition to talking with prospective buyers, raking hay, and spending about an hour daily feeding and bedding the animals, Nancy does all the record keeping. She enjoy keeping records, she says, because she can see the progress they've made.

What is it Nancy likes most about what she's doing?

"Basically, not many people have a job that they like. It was a choice we made on our own. It has provided for us a way of life we enjoy," she replies.

Nancy notes Ron and Drew enjoy working on the farm after a day at the office. Ron finds it a good way to relax.

Concerning what they've learned about farming in the past eleven years, Nancy chuckles as she relates advice given them by a well-intentioned gentleman soon after they began farming.

"He said, 'Leave the cows alone when calving. Let the bull run with the herd year around. Make hay the second week of August--that way you get the first and second cuttings together. And if you have any questions, watch what your neighbors do."

Still chuckling, Nancy notes, "And he was from a city, too."

Wil-Stoch Farm offered a new career to the Wilkins.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

For years, I dismissed our kids' theories about Pop and Mom's historic childhood years as mere sarcastic commentary spawned by your everyday generation-gap outlook.

When they guessed that the schoolbus I rode to first grade boasted stone wheels, laboriously chipped out by wild-animal-skins-clad Neanderthals, working in the smokey, flickering firelight of a damp cave, I merely ignored them.

Assessments that the Farmer and I surely kept company, as teenagers, on horseback or ox-drawn cart were further overlooked.

With each passing year, I've tried convincing myself (from the outlook of increasing experience, no doubt), that the confidence and caution that come with a bit of maturity are Nature's compensation for the lessening of youthful abandon and exuberance.

Facts is facts, ma'am, reminds our bathroom mirror every morning. You "ain't gettin'" any younger.

That reality aside, I was still less than prepared for the invitation contained in a plump envelope which arrived with the morning mail some six or seven weeks ago.

The neatly-printed, brown-on-beige, several-page form letter addressed me as "Dear Friend," and verbally patted me on the back for having lived through some of the "most difficult and trying times in American History" and having "definitely paid your dues."

At first, I figured someone had been keeping track of all the times our heifers had escaped over the past 20 years. But, no, the letter went on to say that some 24 million others have shared my experience. And I know doggone well there aren't THAT many heifer-chasing farm wives around.

Them came the bombshell. I... me... 42-year-old mother of two two-legged offspring and surrogate care-giver of probably 2,000-plus four-legged infants in my time, was being invited to become a member of the American Association of Retired People. Included was a plastic credit-type information card which could join my VISA, Sears and AT&T collection.

Who do these people think they're kidding, I wondered? Next, I pondered what "friend" had passed on my name as a candidate for AARP.

Enclosed with the mailing were several glossy colorful brochures describing the benefits my membership would bring me. New chances to buy additional property and health insurance. Investment opportunities. Travel and motoring plans. Pharmacy and prescription discounts. And a subscription to the AARP's monthly magazine, which I had read occasionally at our local library and knew carried interesting articles -- for any age.

All this for only five bucks. Which would include a year's membership for my spouse. Just for being 50 years of age or older. Ah, ha!

Just as my elbow went into the pitch-position, aimed at the trash-basket, I decided it might be more intriguing to test if AARP's computer would toss me out as underage. Sort of a computer "age carding" of applicants.

My five bucks and application form, complete with factual birth date, went into the mailbox.

A follow-up membership reminder crossed in the mail with my application, further enlightening me with reasons to join.

Sure enough, along about Groundhog Day, the Farmer's and my official AARP membership cards arrived. Following soon after into the mailbox came our AARP pharmacy service catalog, and then a current issue of the group's magazine.

According to my membership info, AARP cards earn discounts for members at certain hotel chains, car rental services, and similar services.

I can hardly wait for the day I can whip out my membership card somewhere and "test the waters" of my new card-carrying status, just to gauge reaction.

Fact is, if my AARP membership is accepted unquestionably, confirming the "senior citizen" label certain acquaintances are now honoring me with, it will no doubt ruin my week.

Taking a page from the protest marches of the '60's, maybe I should just burn my card?

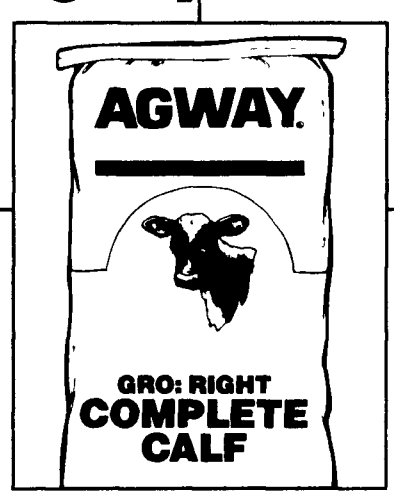
Freshen faster with new Agway Gro:Right. ™



Every calf you raise costs about $60 a month for forage and labor. So if you could breed them at 14 months (6 months earlier than average), they'd freshen at 24 months and you'd save $360 on each calf. Not to mention the profits from 6 extra months of milking.

New Agway Gro:Right Complete Calf Feed can help you do that. It's an improved version of our Total Calf Ration, the brand Northeastern farmers have been using since 1976 to maximize calf-raising efficiency. We've added milk protein and B vitamin complex for rapid growth and efficient energy usage. So calves raised on Agway Complete Calf reach breeding weight in 14 months and join the milking string in 24 months.

Cooking With Lamb

Lamb is the answer to a fantastic meal that you can fix quickly and with great versatility. Since lamb comes from young animals under one-year-old, it's naturally tender and flavorful. Most of the time, lamb may be cooked by dry heat—roasting and broiling—which won't add any fat to your meal.

Lamb is definitely a winner when it comes to choosing a nutritious food for any occasion. The challenge is to decide which of the following great tasting recipes to prepare first.

DILLED LAMB STEW

2 pounds boneless lamb, cut in ¾ -inch cubes
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dillweed
2 cups water
2 cups sliced carrot
1 cup sliced celery
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¼ cup cold water
1 cup dairy sour cream

Brown lamb in hot shortening. Season with mixture of salt and dillweed; add 2 cups water. Cover and simmer about 35 minutes, or until meat is almost tender. Add carrots and celery; cook 15 minutes. Blend flour and ¼ cup water; stir into stew. Cook until mixture thickens and bubbles. Stir in sour cream; heat throughly; do not boil. Makes 6 servings.

Fair Play

Shortly after the Christmas holiday I played a game with my four and a half year old niece. She had received the board game "Sorry" as a gift and was anxious to learn to play. However, there were a few moments when I think both of us were sorry that we had even started the game.

While playing games together is a great family time activity, children are not born with the refined sense of good sportsmanship. This is an acquired trait, and it is acquired over a very long period of time, sometimes accented with kicking and screaming along the way. The reason for this revolves basically around a young child's self-esteem.

In infancy, children identify themselves as the center of the universe. Everything revolves around ME. The notion of fair play asks a child to abandon this cherished self-image in favor of a new order in which others may go first. Good sportsmanship calls on ME to step aside and give others a turn, and to occasionally be a loser.

An additional aspect of playing games is dealing with the notion of chance and the potential of losing. It is difficult for a child to understand a game of chance. Because of the ME concept, when a child draws an unlucky card or rolls a poor number, the child still believes that she is playing a game of skill, over which she has considerable control. Explanations about chance are particularly difficult for children younger than seven or eight to understand. And for some children, to lose leads to the feeling that they have done something bad or wrong. This feeling seems to peak around age six.

So, before you become the referee to the board games in your home, consider turning them into less competitive situations or preferably, no-lose activities. For example, ping pong can be played to achieve the longest volley rather than for points. Jogging might be a pleasant no-lose activity to replace foot racing. Board games might focus on counting the right number of spaces or naming the right colors. Or you may continue playing until everyone has reached a certain level of success. If there are prizes to be obtained, reward everyone. And in games of chance, you will need to make repeated explanations about the workings of chance.

And yes, I know what you're thinking. Children have to learn to deal with win/lose situations if they are to survive in this world. And I would agree that learning to deal with competition is a skill that needs to be obtained. However, children experience a heavy dose of competition every day from other children and adults in many environments without any help from competitive situations that we set up.

In addition to creating no loss situations, as a parent, you need to be a model of a sportsman for your children to copy. How do you handle being a loser? It is around ten years of age when a child will pick up on your good example and is ready emotionally to handle losing. It is at this age that ME realizes that losing a game does not necessarily mean that I'm wrong or bad. How much emphasis you place on winning or losing will interact with the development of good sportsmanship.

So, did I regret attempting to play "Sorry" with my four and a half-year-old niece? Well, honestly, only a tinge sorry when she triumphantly landed all her buttons safely "home" and gleefully announced "I win." And the Me inside silently responded, better luck next time!

Mastersonville Raises Dough For Dollars

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MASTERSONVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Tuesday before Lent signals dough raising time for Mastersonville Fire Company. That's the time both male and female members combine their skills to knead dough to the shape of 3,300 doughnuts, which bring plenty of dollars to the fire company's coffers. Money that is spent on equipment and upkeep.

To have the doughnuts packaged and ready for the Tuesday morning pick up, fire company members began baking at 3 p.m. on Monday. But actual preparation begins long before that. Since their recipe requires potato dough, Arlene Ruhl, president of the women's auxillary, and her assistant Amelia McGallicher scrub, peel and mash 25 batches of potatoes on Monday morning.

The fire house kitchen buzzes with activity as members bring in the ancient iron kettle, rearrange tables and mix ingredients including 160 pounds of flour. "Everyone has their job," Fire Chief Oscar Ruhl commented, "and we all work hard."

His wife pointed out, "We never know how many helpers we're getting, they just show up."

As the flour-dusted members knead, roll and cut the doughnuts, they joke about their "low cholesterol" doughnuts and nibble on plenty of samples, "to make sure they taste good," one volunteer joked. They recall that one year, they forgot to add sugar to a batch, but no one complained.

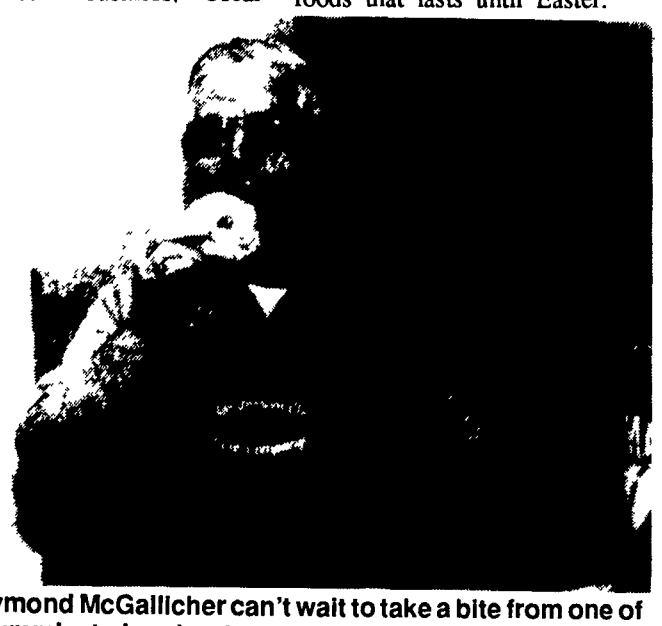
The job keeps members busy until 2 a.m., when they take a short snooze only to arise three hours later to ready the doughnuts for early morning pickup.

Mastersonville is a secluded little village on the northern edge of the county. It isn't on the main thoroughfare so if anyone wants to buy a dozen of the fabled doughnuts, they must make a special trip through the winding countryside between seven and nine o'clock on Tuesday morning.

Yet despite the town's isolation, the fire company always manages to sell every doughnut they bake. "We have a good reputation or we wouldn't be in business," Oscar declared. "Every year we get more orders."

The tradition of eating doughnuts on the Tuesday before the beginning of the Lenten season stems from the Pennsylvania Dutch custom where housewives would use up their yeast, sugar and lard before beginning a 40-day penance and self-denial of rich foods that lasts until Easter.

President of the Mastersonville Fire Hall Auxillary, Arlene Ruhl, mixes more than 3,000 dozens donuts batch by batch.



Raymond McGallicher can't wait to take a bite from one of the yummiest doughnuts ever made.

Riding To School On A Manure Spreader

By Ida Risser

This story is about three little children who lived on a farm far from any neighbors. They had to learn to play together and work together. Their parents kept them busy with chores in the house and in the barn.

One winter day they had an experience that they would remember for a long time. When they awoke on this particular morning, they saw more snow than they had ever seen before. Two feet of snow covered everything. Alice, Brian and Dennis waited until their father had shoveled a path to the barn before they even tried to go out.

Alice put on her red knitted cap and went outside to tend her rabbits. Their pen was hidden under the snow as a drift had formed beside it. But her black and white rabbits were just fine and hopped over to their dish to be fed. Sometimes in the evening, she would bring them in the house and they would sit quietly on the sofa beside her.

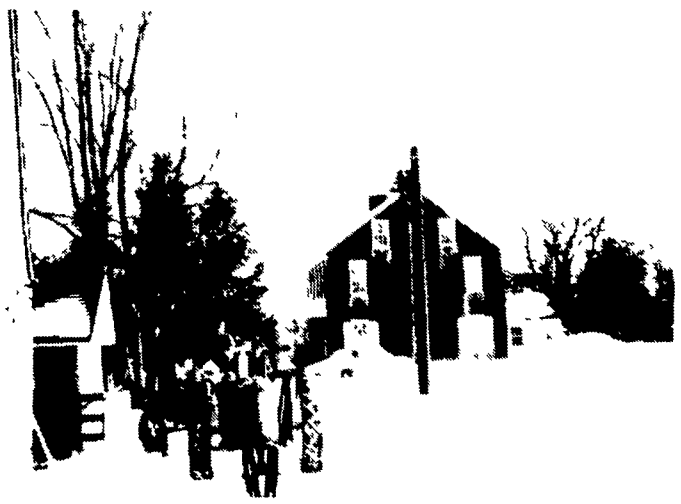
Brian and Dennis waded behind their father to the barn where they helped to feed the calves and bed the cows. On school mornings they did not help with the milking.

How would they get to school today? At least they had some extra time since the buses would come two hours late. Father had an idea. He put the snow plow on the tractor and then hitched it to the manure spreader. Yes, the manure spreader. This was the old kind with beaters on the back and not the tank type.

First father scattered a bale of straw on the floor of the spreader and then mother spread old blankets over top. Alice, Brian and Dennis were helped into the spreader and they started off up the long lane beside the woods. The tractor pulled them past their mailbox buried under fluffy snow. Past the meadow and up a steep hill to another road where the bus traveled. They were in plenty of time for the bus and this was an experience that they would remember for a long time.

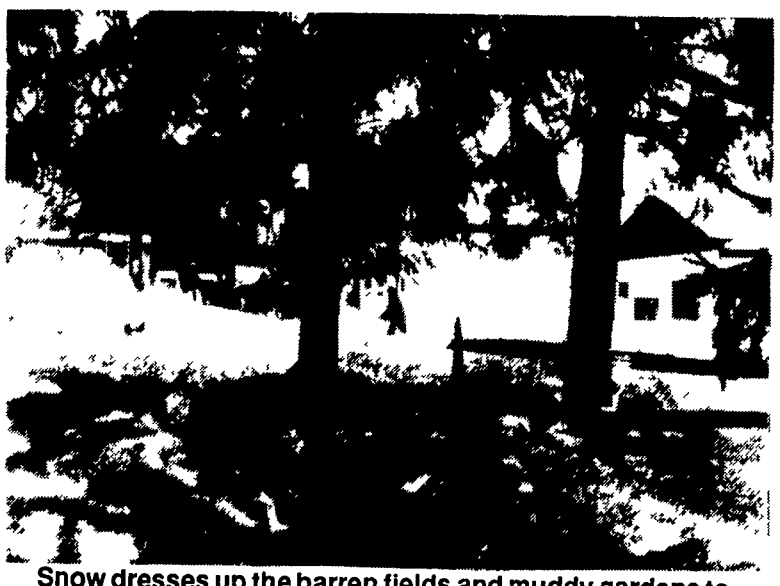
Hey Kids!

We'd like to hear about the interesting and funny things that happen to you and your family. Try to keep them short. Please type or write legibly and send your story to Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 366, Lititz, PA 17543.



Not too many years ago, milk was hauled in milk cans.

Despite the snow, farm work on the farm must still be done.



Snow dresses up the barren fields and muddy gardens to fairy-like beauty.

Waiting For A Big Snow Storm?

Are you still waiting for a big snow storm? Don't despair. Some of the biggest snowstorms come in March.

In fact, 100 years ago, the Great Blizzard of 1888 struck the East Coast from Maine to Maryland. More than 400 people died in that violent storm.

Although blizzards can cause a lot of damage and deaths, they aren't all terrible. They close schools and that brings a lot of cheers from the kids. After the blizzard dies down, piles of snow remains. They make excellent places to dig huts and tunnels for winter fun. When a crust hardens the snow, you can walk on top of the drifts. Ask your grandparents about the snow that was higher than the mailboxes.

Some people make ice cream from the freshly fallen snow. But most children like to fight snowball battles and make snow angels and snowmen.

Today, Ida Risser wrote a story about a snow storm that happened many years ago. Whether it's snowing or not, I'm sure you will enjoy it.

It's shoveling time!

Anybody want a sled ride?

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

When winter winds blow, a hearty chili supper warms and satisfies family members of all ages. Microwave this meal ahead and reheat it or make it to serve right away.

To make this cozy supper ahead and reheat, follow directions below each recipe. To make and serve right away, microwave the chili first, so it can stand to flavor through while you make the mashed potatoes. While potatoes cook, prepare some relishes. Serve ice cream for dessert.

For chili, start microwaving the pork, seasonings, onion and green pepper before adding any liquid. This fully cooks the meat and tenderizes the vegetables. Adding seasoning during this first step, rather than at the end when liquid is added, insures a well-flavored chili even if it's served right away. (However, this, and other chilies taste richer when made ahead and reheated.)

Stir the pork mixture after each two minutes, so pork strips do not overcook and toughen. Usually meats (except ground ones) are microwaved on a lower power, but thin strips of meat may be cooked on High if stirred often. After the first two minutes of cooking, the pork strips will have barely started to cook. Microwave another two minutes and you'll see some cooking. Stir well and microwave the final one or, only if needed, two minutes. Don't be tempted to skip the stirring step after each two minutes or pork will overcook around the dish edges and toughen.

There are many good foods to serve with chili — such as plain soda crackers, taco chips or corn bread — but one of my favorites is mashed potatoes. Back when I was five years old I never liked the spiciness of of chili, but a favorite great aunt of mine enticed me to try her chili on mashed potatoes and I've liked the combination ever since. Chili over mashed potatoes makes a more filling meal than chili alone and the mashed potatoes tone down the chili's spiciness a bit.

Potatoes could be cooked on the range while you microwave the chili, but if you have time, the microwave method is easier and more nutritious. The same dish can be used for cooking, mashing and serving. Cooking time is slightly faster and draining is unnecessary. Much less water is used in the microwave method and since it's not drained off, vitamins end up in the potatoes, not down the drain.

Winter Supper Chili

¾ pound pork, cut in thin strips
1 garlic clove, minced
3-4 teaspoons chili powder
1½ teaspoons ground cumin
1 large onion, diced
½ green pepper, diced
1 can (10¾ ounces) tomato soup
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes in juice, undrained
1 can (16 ounces) kidney beans, undrained

Stir together pork, garlic, chili powder and cumin in a microwave-safe 2 to 3 quart casserole. Then stir in onion and green pepper. Cover casserole with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 5 to 6 minutes, stirring after each 2 minutes, until pork is barely cooked. Stir in remaining ingredients. Add half or a whole soup can of water, if desired. Microwave (High), covered with waxed paper or lid, 9 to 11 minutes or until chili starts to boil, stirring once. Let stand about 10 to 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Each serving: 238 calories, 20g protein, 6g fat, 26g carbohydrate, 561mg sodium, 41mg cholesterol.

To make ahead: Prepare as above. Cover tightly and refrigerate until serving time. Then microwave (High), tightly covered, for 8 to 11 minutes or until hot, stirring once or twice. If frozen, microwave on High, tightly covered, 15 to 20 minutes. Stop and break apart with a fork several times while thawing and stir at least once towards end of heating time.

Mashed Potatoes

6 medium potatoes, peeled and cut in eighths
½ cup water
½ -¾ cup milk
3-4 tablespoons butter
½ -1 teaspoon salt (optional)
¼ teaspoon white pepper, optional

Put potatoes and water in microwave-safe 2-quart casserole. Cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 12 to 15 minutes or until potatoes are almost tender, stirring once during cooking. Let stand, covered, about 10 minutes or until potatoes are fork tender. Do not drain. Mash potatoes and stir in milk, butter and seasonings; mix well. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

To make ahead: Prepare as above. Cover tightly and refrigerate until serving time. Then microwave (High), tightly covered, for 7 to 9 minutes or until hot, stirring once or twice. If frozen, microwave on High, tightly covered, 12 to 16 minutes. Stop and break apart with a fork several times while thawing and stir at least once towards end of heating time.

Each serving — 1/6 of recipe: 205 calories, 5g protein, 6g fat, 34g carbohydrate, 87mg sodium, 19mg cholesterol.

Questions and answers —

Q. My daughter told me her friend does lobster tails in her microwave. How do you microwave them?

A. The method that I use is adapted from General Electric's The Microwave Guide and Cookbook. Thaw frozen lobster tails first on Medium Low (30 percent power, about 200 watts). Two lobster tails (8 to 10 ounces each) take 5 to 7 minutes. Microwave half the time with hard shell-side down. Turn hard shell-side up and microwave remaining time. When thawed, they should be flexible and transparent, yet feel cool. Let stand about 5 minutes.

To cook, microwave on High in a tightly covered dish. Do not add water. Start with hard shell-side down for half of cooking time. Then cut through center of hard shell and meat, leaving soft shell intact. Spread apart and return to dish. Brush with an equal amount of melted butter and lemon juice. Re-cover dish and microwave second half of time. For 2 lobster tails (8 to 10 ounces each), allow about 5½ to 6 minutes. After cooking, meat should still be slightly translucent towards center. Let stand tightly covered 5 minutes. When done, meat will turn opaque (solid white). It's important to stop and split the lobster tails and to allow standing time as directed. If you don't, the centers will remain undone and when you try to cook them further the outside edges will toughen and dry out.

New Zealand Shepherd Enthralls Wool Growers

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER — On Monday night, Nancy Ann Sayre fascinated members of Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Grower's Association with her description of New Zealand sheep production.

Sayre told the group gathered at the Farm and Home Center about her experiences with livestock and forage production at Haldon Station in New Zealand. A native of northern Maryland, Sayre worked closely with the development of Booroola sheep during her year in the South Pacific. She illustrated her talk with videos and slides of sheep flocks grazing on the lush New Zealand grasses. Some of these flocks comprised as many as 90,000 sheep.

The association, which was organized last year, elected new delegates at the meeting to fill one-year terms. They include Robert Herr, a Dorset breeder from Narvon, and Sue Donches, an active 4-H leader and sheep grower in Manheim.

Two-year terms will be completed by Barbara Elliot, spinner and weaver at the Golden Lamb in Lititz, and Frank Stoltzfus who has been in the sheep business since 1979. He raises 40 Dorsets in the Elizabethtown area.

On March 24, the association will show a video on lambing and lamb survival. A panel will discuss lambing techniques. The second annual sheep shearing school will be held at Ed Harkins Farm on April 8 and 9. The cost is $15 for members, $20 for non-members. Preregistration is required by April 1. For more information, contact Chet Hughes, Lancaster Co. livestock agent, Farm & Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601; 717/394-6851.

The Turkey Feeder that Solves Four Problems of Continuous Grow-Out.

1 The grower can more easily follow prescribed feeding practices and programs He has control of the system

2 Every feeder line accepts interchangeable pan sizes, medium depth and deep pans, Plus Big Dutchman offers The Orange One, a smaller feeder with a more shallow 13-inch diameter pan for starting poults

3 Feed depth and flow are controlled by a single winch at the hopper end of the line Accurate settings are easy to make without time-consuming, one-by-one adjustments Only Big Dutchman offers this depth control feature

4 The Big Dutchman turkey feeding system has an outstanding capability for programmed feeding The cable adjustment mechanism allows the operator to fill all the pans in the line to maximum capacity when birds are first brought into the house As feed is eaten out of the pans, the adjustable skirt will move down to the pre-selected position

- Strong central core keeps the skirt aligned and holds pan and shield in position
- Large pan is extra deep, with feed-saving lip The large pan is 5 inches deep, medium pan is 3 inches deep
- Draw cable raises or lowers all pan skirts in the line Maximum feed flow opening is 4 5 inches
- Ample open space between the pan and the upper shield allows adult turkeys to eat comfortably
- Suspension of the plastic core is strengthened by steel hangers that engage the plastic core above the auger tube
- There are no small parts Assembly and maintenance are simple and easy
- Interchangeable pan sizes provide versatility, matching the feeding equipment to the needs and growth stages of the flock, from poults to heavy toms

Shreds stalks yet won't plug up!

The perfect tool for ridge and minimum till

The Fuerst harrow cleans ridge tops, creating excellent seedbed. Unique "Spreading Action"® tines hug the soil at faster speeds to shred and evenly spread no-till stalks in the spring.

Dozens of uses:

The harrow used behind a disc or cultivator, incorporates herbicides in one pass. Used alone, it covers broadcasted seed, renovates, maintains pastures and more.

The harrow/cart (an optional harrow carrier as shown) follows tight turns, has folding wings for easy transport. Harrow and cart are available in 16 to 42 ft. widths.

"I believe the harrow works as good as a stalk shredder; it lifts and shatters the stalks and yet doesn't tear up the ground."
Roger Bommer--
Brookville, IN

The Golden Lamb Spins With Creativity

BY LOU ANN GOOD

NEFFSVILLE (Lancaster) — The Golden Lamb nestles in the small Village of Fiddlers Green. Owner Barbara Elliot fashioned the shop to entice lovers of fine wool to spin, weave and knit with creativity.

Wooden crates and hand-woven baskets display the varied colors of quality wools that can also be purchased in natural colors for dyeing.

For the curious customer, four looms are available for experimentation. According to Barbara, first-time weavers can finish a scarf in three hours. She said, "It's a great opportunity to try weaving without commitment." Otherwise, interested weavers would need to purchase a loom.

Barbara hopes those who take classes will love working with wool as much as she does. She explained that she did a lot of different kinds of crafts before settling down to spinning and weaving. The Mansfield University graduate majored in home economics and worked at several business-related jobs before opening her shop. She recalled, "While I was working in the business world, I kept thinking about spinning and weaving. It was always there in back of my mind."

Always, Barbara filled her spare time with her two favorite crafts. She said, "Some people are too exhausted to do anything after a day's work, but me—I'm never too tired to spin wool, no matter how tired I am. It's relaxing."

While Barbara worked in the business world, spinning and weaving filled her spare moments. To purchase supplies for her loom, Barbara found it necessary to travel more than 60 miles or resort to ordering by mail. Mail-order has its drawbacks, Barbara commented, "I wanted a place where people can see and feel the wool for inspiration."

Although it takes most new weavers three hours to weave a scarf, Barbara can do it within 45 minutes.

The dream for owning a shop kept growing. Barbara recalled, "I had this gut feeling that a shop that sold spinning wheels, quality wool yarns, books and patterns would do well in this area." When she took the plunge to open the shop three years ago, Barbara was pleasantly surprised. "I've been able to apply some of what I've learned from my former jobs although I had no merchandizing experience."

With her hands-on instructions and availability to aid those who encounter problems tackling spinning and weaving, Barbara enjoys a steady clientel. She does not limit handweaving to home decor. She remarked, "I like the tailored look in homewoven garments. I think it's more appealing than the drooping style." She added, "Our designs compliment good-quality wools. Our extensive color selection coordinates with ready-to-wear articles."

As Barbara fingered one of the handwoven garments displayed in her store, she said, "Weaving and spinning give fulfillment and an opportunity for creativity in designing."

People often try to compare the price of a ready-made garment with the cost of materials required to make it, but Barbara points out that price and cost cannot be compared. "Spinning and weaving give a sense of well-being that can't be expressed in dollars and cents. If you go to Paris and try to buy a hand-made and hand-tailored garment—it's priceless."

Since Barbara is fond of wool, she found a natural outlet to become involved in the Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Grower's Association that formed last year. As a board member she hopes to help give the association a sound foundation to grow. She said, "I don't raise sheep, but I think I can serve as a liason to consumers by promoting wool."

Barbara finds the association's meetings a valuable learning experience. There, she has learned the differences between sheep raised for meat and those raised for wool production. Barbara said, "Sometimes I purchase fleece in the grease." She explained that spinners use that terminology when describing raw wool as opposed to clean wool.

Although Barbara primarily likes to spin and weave, she does offer knitting supplies and holds a knitting gathering at her shop on the third Thursday of every month from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. "The meetings are inspirational," she explained, "Usually we single out a technique and practice on scraps of yarn." Call 717/569-6878 for more information.

Barbara Elliot believes the value of a handwoven garment is priceless. She said, the sense of well-being from accomplishing this timeless craft cannot be expressed in dollars and cents.

Have You Heard?

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

How You Complain Can Make A Difference

Got a gripe? Before you complain about a product or service, be sure you do it the right way, advises the Major Appliance Consumer Panel (MACAP).

MACAP ought to know. The Panel has received and processed almost 39,000 consumer complaints about major home appliances since 1970, when it was established.

To register a complaint:

* Describe clearly your current problem or complaint. Use facts.

* State exactly what you want the company or agency to do to make things right.

* Print (don't write) your complaint legibly. Better yet, if you can, use a typewriter.

* Use standard paper, preferably white. Colored paper often does not copy well. Since several people or departments may be involved in handling your complaint, your letter and other documents may be copied several times. (MACAP reports receiving complaints written on backs of napkins...cereal boxes!).

* Use a pen that writes dark ink (blue or black) and medium point so that the letter will be legible when copied.

* Include copies of all related documents — your purchase receipts, service receipts, past correspondence with service agencies and the manufacturer. And be sure to keep all of the originals!

* Date your letter and other documents.

* Provide your daytime telephone number.

* Reread your letter several times before sending. And, when you do, be sure to put yourself in the reader's shoes.

* Always be polite. Remain calm. Customer relations personnel with a company or agency may be instructed not to handle complaints from rude or offensive consumers. This policy applies to both letters and phone calls.

Once your complaint is in process:

* Don't delay providing any additional information that is requested.

* Follow the exact directions for procedures and filling out forms.

* Let the company know immediately of any new developments - the product was repaired and is working, a new problem has developed, etc.

If your complaint happens to be about a refrigerator, freezer, range, oven, microwave oven, dishwasher, disposer, washer, dryer, trash compactor or water heater and you are not successful in resolving it locally or with the manufacturer's customer relations office, write MACAP, 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

MACAP is a group of independent consumer experts sponsored by appliance manufacturing and retailing organizations. MACAP receives and resolves complaints from appliance owners and advises industry of ways to improve consumer services. It also advises consumers on proper appliance purchase, use and maintenance.

6,000 New Food Products

If you find it increasingly difficult to keep up with all the new foods in your local supermarket, don't dispair, there is a reason for this. In 1986, there were 6,107 new food items introduced into U.S. markets. This was a 9% increase over the 5,617 new products introduced in 1985.

Manufacturers of new products continue to appeal to the "up market" end of consumers' tastes. In addition, calcium-fortification continues to be an active areas for new items. Ethnic foods, especially Cajun/Creole and Oriental categories, also enjoyed success.

Each year more microwaveable products and introduced. In addition to the traditional popcorn, pancakes, pizza, etc., new entries included cake mixes, coffee bags, nachos, and breakfast sandwiches.

The ten food categories with the most activities in 1986 were: brownies, wine coolers, flavored seltzers, imported beers, juice-base soft drinks, isotomic beverages, premium cookies, chocolate bars, and blended juice.

The Lancaster County 4-H Therapeutic Riding Program is seeking a volunteer stable manager to handle the therapeutic horses and tack during its session beginning April 11. Applicants should be knowledgeable about horses. For more information contact Carol Henkle at 786-2562 after 8 p.m.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

You have all heard of our need for more landfills because of our "throw-away" society. There is a constant debate as to the need for giant incinerators and their impact on our environment.

One solution might be to use and reuse what we have. I'm probably doing my part by storing my trash at home. There are bags of newspaper clippings and many photos of an Ida Eby family that I'd be glad to give to her relatives.

When I get a big cardboard box, I do not burn it but rather store it in the basement for later use. When I get a small cardboard box, I store it in the attic and fill it with cookies for Christmas gifts.

I'm using my mother's envelopes that need to have the flaps pried loose as they had become glued fast. And, when a chair needed new armrest covers I did not buy new material, but rather hunted an old skirt with heavy fabric and used it. I have so many clothes in garment bags that fit no one. However, it is a good thing to have when I need a particular color for a rug. Even as I write, an old sweater has become my lap robe.

I can use a toothpick to test more than "one" cake, and the tiny soap scraps are cut into slivers for the washing machine. Even pot holders get mended rather than replaced with new ones.

Yes, I launder plastic bags and use bread wrappers to store my empty freezer boxes. I did not steal these saving ways but rather I inherited them from a long line of savers.

Now it isn't that I never spend large sums of money. I bought a big car last year, a fur coat a few years ago and even paid several hundred dollars to have my living-room repapered when it was not really necessary.

It seems that I save a nickel here and there so that I can splurge occasionally.

FFA, 4-H Pave Eaton's Path To Success

BY LISA RISSER

RED LION (York Co.) — John Eaton, 18, is a slender, unassuming young man with a quick, engaging smile. He looks very much like a typical Penn State student. The first clue that he is a special person comes with a glimpse of his intense concentration on his FFA and 4-H projects. The next, and most obvious, clue comes upon entering his bedroom where a visitor is overwhelmed, even awed, by the assortment of plaques, trophies, ribbons, and awards that cover the walls and his desk.

John, an animal bio-science major, is involved in beef, sheep, and swine breeding and finishing. His list of accomplishments is long, and other than the most prestigous, he has trouble remembering all the awards that he has received. He was named 1987 Youth of the Year by the Pennsylvania Dorset Breeders Association, was third in the state FFA livestock judging competition and won a silver medal at the national contest, was awarded the Keystone Farmer Degree, was the top state 4-H meats judger and number one in the national competition, and won the Stockman's competition at last year's Keystone International Livestock Exhibition.

In addition John and his animals have won a galaxy of shows. Last year alone he had champion and reserve champion market hogs, champion and reserve champion Dorset rams and ewes, and champion and reserve champion Suffolk rams and ewes. He also has had the champion steer at the York County Roundup for three consecutive years. He was president of the 4-H beef club for two years, the 4-H sheep club for one year, and his FFA club for one year.

Perhaps the reason John is untouched by the bravado that often accompanies success like his, is that he knows how much work it took to get there. "It takes time and preparation to get an animal ready to show," he said. "In order to get them to know you, you must work with them."

John's work includes hours of handling, trimming, clipping, and setting up the animals. It also encompasses exercise for the steers and lambs. While the steers are walked in the field, the lambs leap hurdles that John sets up outside the shed-turned-barn.

His menagerie currently consists of a 15-sheep Dorset breeding flock and a beef heifer due to calve in April. Not too long ago it also included of a small flock of Suffolk, market hogs, market steers, and market lambs.

Spending time with his animals isn't hard for John who believes "You can take pride in what you do because if you work with them and they do well, you know you're time was worth it."

John puts a lot of time and energy into preparing for livestock and meats judging contests. He studied and practiced with his teammates at frequent, regular intervals, and shortly before a competition John would bone up on his terminology.

It was his presentation and vocabulary in addition to subject knowledge that helped John excell in the judging contests. He found that although the officials may not agree with a contestant's placing of the animals, "they didn't take off as long as you explained the main points of the animals. Like if you placed a small steer ahead of a large one, you'd have to explain that while the first-place steer is small, it has a structural correctness that the second-place one lacks. They looked for smooth presentations."

John credits much of his success to FFA. "It's helped me a lot. It influenced me to look for a career in agriculture, and it influenced my preference in animals. I used to be strictly beef. Now I'm primarily sheep," John explained.

A 4-H beef club member since he was nine, John became interested in steers when his father, John Sr., began raising a few. Later, John got involved in raising market lambs. His interest in sheep breeding and hogs stemmed from FFA projects. "I enjoy working with animals and with FFA, I got the opportunity to expand my projects and to learn about animals."

Working with the animals also taught John about responsibility and patience. "Sheep especially make you learn patience because they never cooperate," John commented with a laugh.

John enjoys the time he has spent in FFA, including his year of leadership as president of his chapter. He would encourage anyone interested in agriculture to join FFA. "It's a good learning experience. I'd tell that person that down the road he'd be glad he did join. I know I am."

Although John hasn't completely nailed down his choice in careers, he plans to work in the agricultural industry. No matter what he chooses it's a safe bet that he'll being using knowledge and skills he learned through Future Farmers of America and 4-H.

John Eaton, 18, has won many awards during his years in FFA and 4-H. Most recently, he was named the 1987 Youth of the Year by the Pennsylvania Dorset Breeders Association, won 4-H meats judging competitions on the state and national levels, and won the Stockman's competition at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

Eaton's rams are kept in a field adjacent to the shed-turned-barn where his ewes, lambs, and beef are kept. He borrowed the goat from a friend to help keep predators from his prize-winning animals.

Eaton currently has a flock of 15 Dorset breeding sheep, many of which are home bred. This year his home-bred sheep took champion and reserve ram and ewe honors in FFA competition.

Chocolatetown USA Offers A Feast On The Sweetest Holiday Of The Year

Debbie Yandric, Middletown, puts some finishing touches on her entry in the Hershey's Cocoa Bake-off Contest held in conjunction with the 6th Annual Great American Chocolate Festival. There were twenty-four original recipe entries in the contest.

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

HERSHEY — Where else would a chocolate lover rather be on the sweetest holiday of the year then in Chocolatetown, USA? Over 1000 persons with a passion for America's favorite flavor attended the Sixth Annual Great American Chocolate Festival held at the Hershey Convention Center Valentine's Day weekend.

Billed as a chocolate lover's extravaganza -- Bar None, the festival events ranged from cooking classes featuring New York's top caterers, Risk Rodgers, to a Gala Sweetheart Dinner Dance. Youngsters were entertained with game themes such as "Chocolate Bingo" and "Let's Make a Chocolate Deal." Events could be attended individually or as part of a weekend package deal with the lodge and convention center.

One of the highlights of the festival was the Chocolate Gallery opened Sunday afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Hershey Lodge. Here professional chefs displayed their talents using chocolate for everything from dipping, to cooking, to decorating.

Long lines careened around the booth-filled room as festival goers sampled chocolate fettucine, a myriad of chocolate cakes, cookies, chocolate beverages, and, of course, plenty of Hershey candies. When not eating the chocolate, you could pause to watch chocolate sculpturing in progress. It was an all-you-can-eat chocolate smorgasbord.

In addition to the professionals at work, festival goers viewed the 24 entries in Hershey's Cocoa Bake-Off which was held as part of the festival. The bake-off was open to any person over 18.

The recipe category was titled, "My Most Spectacular Chocolate Dessert." It had to use Hershey's Cocoa and other Hershey's chocolate product. All recipes had to be original.

All entries were judged Sunday morning by a panel of judges including four Hershey Foods employees and Doug Alan and Nancy Burns from WGAL's PM Magazine show. The recipes were judged on the basis of the amount of cocoa used, creativity, taste, appearance, and use of other Hershey chocolate. All the winning recipes are the property of Hershey Foods Corporation and could not be published here.

The "Best of Show" award for the contest was won by Anita Youtz, Columbia, for her entry, "Chocolate Truffle Fantasia." Youtz won an all-expense paid weekend for two at the Hershey

Philadelphia Hotel and Hershey Foods Corporation made a donation of $500 in her name to the Hershey Medical Center. Other winners included first prize to Alice Hoffman-Gates, Palmyra, with "Bar-None Chocolate Cake"; second prize, Wendy Lloyd, Harrisburg, with "Chocolate Scrumptious Cake"; third prize, Kathy Middleton, Harrisburg, with "Chocolate Blackberry Finale Cake."

The festival culminated Monday with the unwrapping of the "World's Largest Chocolate Bar... Bar None." Hershey Chocolate Company introduced its new Bar None chocolate bar nationally last fall. As a part of the festival, the company decided to go for a spot in the Guiness Book of World Records.

The bar was constructed in Hershey's Stuarts Draft, Virginia, plant and was engineered by Dr. Robert W. Larson, Dr. Carl Wong, and Harold Cook, all of Hershey Food and Hershey Chocolate. The bar required three months for structural design and planning and two full days of actual construction.

The "World's Largest Chocolate Bar... Bar None" was a one ton chocolate bar equivalent to approximately 28,350 Bar None chocolate bars. Its ingredients list include: 2,928 square feet of chocolate wafer, 1,075 pounds of chocolate creme, 12 pounds of peanuts, and 350 pounds of milk chocolate. It contained nearly six million calories.

Invited to the unwrapping and sampling of the bar were all members of the newly formed Chocolate Lovers Club. "The Chocolate Lovers Club is a lighthearted, fun club for people who share a love for chocolate," said Joseph P. Viviano, president of Hershey Chocolate U.S.A. and Hershey's Certified Chocolate Lovers Club. Viviano explains, "By becoming a member, chocolate lovers can stay on top of the latest chocolate news, try unique chocolate recipes from famous chefs and receive discounts on chocolate and chocolate-related products."

One ton of chocolate is a lot of chocolate, so whatever the club members were unable to finish of the giant bar was donated to the students of the Milton Hershey School, chocolate lovers in their own right.

According to Viviano, to date there are approximately 6,000 members in the club, and he expects at least 50,000 members before long Viviano has aspirations of the club membership climbing to the millions.

Anyone can join by sending a proof of purchase from a Hershey product and $2, or just $5.95 to: Chocolate Lovers Club Membership, Hershey's Chocolate World, Park Boulevard, Box 800, Hershey, PA 17033.

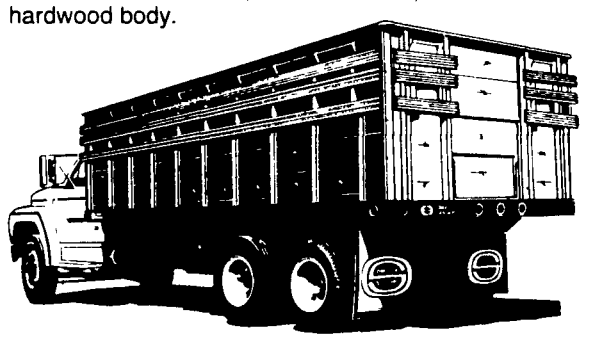
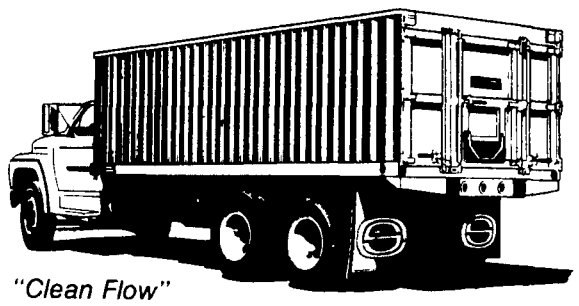
Grain & Livestock Bodies

Bigger than ever, Better than ever. A full 96" wide...

We've built rugged truck bodies for more than 60 years and today we're continuing that tradition. That's the reason you can't make a better investment than an Omaha Standard steel, stakeless steel, aluminum or hardwood body.





"Clean Flow"
Aluminum Bodies

- All-aluminum construction ..splice-free 60" or 72" high stakeless sides .extruded outrail and tarp rail cap..."I" beam cross sills
- "Clean Flow" design of the extra deep 30° sidewall corrugations allows complete emptying with no sharp corners for grain to hang up
- Standard three-section full opening rear doors and swing-out header
- Greater inside dimensions and light weight give you more hauling capacity and let you save fuel while doing it.

Steel and Hardwood Farm Bodies

- One-piece roll formed steel sides with built-in tarp rail Available in 28", 40" and 52" heights. .all with maximum corrugation for maximum strength

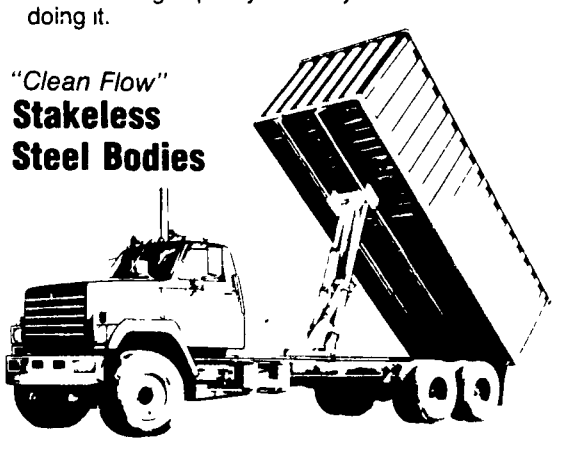
"Clean Flow"
Stakeless Steel Bodies



- 52" or 60" heavy gauge sides give you more hauling capacity for grain, sugar beets and other commodities

All Brower supplement feeders are constructed of heavy galvanized steel for years of service, have adjustable feed gate at trough with fast feed flow, and a 1" wide feed saver lip. The 11H and 22H feeders handle 4-week-old pigs to sows; top lids raise from back for easy filling without disturbing the hogs; heavy weathertight trough lids keep out moisture and pests. The 1HF and 2HF feeders are ideal for confinement uses and have keyhole slots for hanging. The 111 Sow Feeder fits most farrowing crates.

The D-1000 makes bales 2'x3'x8' in size weighing about 700 pounds. Bale size and 15 percent greater density provide almost twice as much baling capacity over a 14"x18" conventional baler, the company says. An electronic bale command control box monitors and controls major functions.

Ford New Holland Introduces Mid-Size Square Baler

NEW HOLLAND — Here's good news for hay producers who decided that earlier big-bale balers were just too big: the New Holland Model D-1000 Mid-Size Square Baler from Ford New Holland.

"D-1000" bales are 2'x3'x8' in size and weigh about 700 pounds. "We believe this size and weight make the 'D-1000' ideal for larger family farms as well as many commercial hay operations. The bale size lets you move bales easily with medium-size tractors for on-farm storage and feeding; or to load trucks and trailers for economical hauling," says Dick Salisbury, Ford New Holland product manager.

The "D-1000" also makes bales about 15% more dense than conventional bales. The denser bales and large baler size provide almost twice as much baling capacity as a 14"x18" conventional baler, Salisbury says.

The standard Bale Command control box in the tractor cab monitors and controls all major functions of the "D-1000" without the operator having to constantly look back. This speeds baling, too, as well as adding to operator comfort.

The "D-1000" requires a 90-hp or larger tractor.

Richard Unverferth Now President Of Farm Equipment Manufacturers

WARSAW, In. — Richard Unverferth, president of Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc., Kalida, Ohio, was installed as president of the Farm Equipment Manufacturers Association (FEMA) November 18 at the FEMA national meeting in Atlanta.

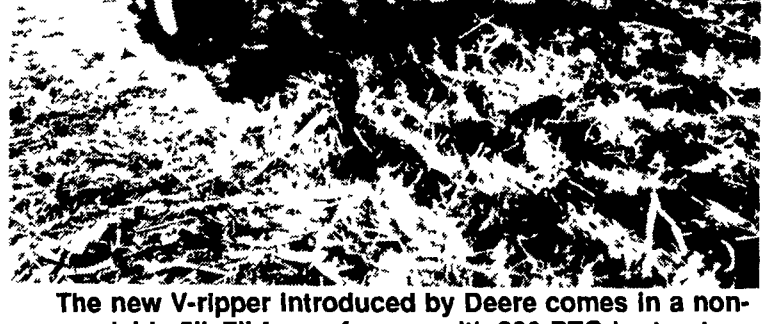
An international organization of specialized manufacturers of agricultural and commercial machinery, FEMA was founded in 1950 to address the special requirements of the shortline industry. From an original charter membership of 46 companies, FEMA has grown into an association of over ten times the size of that initial membership. Since the inception of FEMA, member companies have consistently led the way in the development of agricultural and commercial equipment.

Richard Unverferth founded Unverferth Manufacturing in 1948 in the family workshop. Initially manufacturing elevator controls, bale hooks, hitch pins, etc., the company patented a revolutionary dual wheel system for tractors. Building on innovation, Unverferth Manufacturing has become a leader in the agricultural industry and now offers a full-line of multiple wheel systems for tractors, cultivating/tillage equipment, grain handling equipment and hay handling equipment.

BUSINESS NEWS...



The new V-ripper introduced by Deere comes in a non-expandable 5"x7" frame for use with 200 PTO hp tractors and a 7"x7" expandable frame for use on 350 PTO hp.

Deere Offers V-Ripper

MOLINE, IL — John Deere has introduced the 915 V-ripper designed for deep tillage in high levels of residue. Maximum working depths of the new ripper are: 24 inch for safety trip standard without coulter, 23 inch for shear bolt standard without coulter, and 19 inch for shear bolt and safety trip standard with coulters.

The new ripper, replacing the 900 and 910 models, comes in two frame sizes: a non-expandable 5" x 7" frame for use with tractors having a maximum of 200 PTO hp and 7" x 7" expandable frame for use with tractors having a maximum of 350 PTO hp.

The 5" x 7" frame accepts up to 7 standards at 20" or 25" spacing or 5 standards at 30 inch spacing. The 7" x 7" frame accepts up to 11 standards (13 with extensions) at 20 inch spacing, 9 standards (11 with extensions) at 25 inch spacing, or 7 standards (9 with extensions) at 30 inch spacing.

Both v-ripper frames attach to three-point hitches compatible with category 2, 3 or 3N with or without quick coupler. Tractors without three-point hitches can use an optional, field converted, drawn-hitch package for the 7" x 7" frame.

For high residue fields, shear bolt standards may be equipped with optional coulters. Two-piece assembly assures minimum replacement costs for shear bolt standards with coulters and safety trip standards. All standards are replaceable with 2¼ inch, high-carbon, heat-treated points.

Coulters, shear bolt or cushion, have rippled blades available in 18-, 20-, or 22-inch diameters. Cushion coulters accept a maximum 18 inch blade and shear bolt coulters accept a maximum 22 inch blade.

Underframe clearance is 35.5 inch on shear bolt standards and 39.7 inch on safety trip standards.

Gauge wheels, base equipment for 7" x 7" frame with 9, 11, or 13 standards, help maintain consistent depth when used as an integral machine.

Other features include parking stands and transport warning lights. Parking stands are in base equipment for 5" x 7" frame with 5 or 7 standards and are optional on other rippers.

COBA/SELECT Announces Meeting

Dr. Wallace E. Erickson, General Manager of COBA/SELECT SIRES, INC. announces their 42nd Annual Meeting of members to be held at the Stouffer Dublin Hotel in Dublin, Ohio, Friday, March 11, 1988 beginning at 10:30 a.m. Dr. Erickson says the annual meeting is planned for directors, delegates, members and guests throughout COBA's eight-state area including Ohio, northwestern Pennsylvania, eastern Indiana, western West Virginia, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona.

The 42nd Annual Meeting will include a business session for members to learn more about their cooperative and the results of the 1987 year. Mr. Fred Friday, President of COBA/SELECT SIRE's Board of Directors, says the Board has voted to return a 30% cash refund to members on the member margin earned by the cooperative in 1987.

Keynote speaker for the 42nd Annual Meeting will be Joan Johanson of Gowrie, Iowa. She has often been described as "Iowa's Erma Bombeck." In hundreds of appearances in the United States and Canada, she not only brings laughter, but leaves a sense of betterment, a happier frame of mind and a message not quickly forgotten ... "humor can lead to a happier, healthier and more successful life."

Adams Co. Farm Tops State Corn Silage Club

HALL, NY — Mason Dixon Farms of Adams County Pennsylvania, recorded an amazing 45.2 tons of 70% moisture corn silage to top the 1987 Pennsylvania Corn Silage Club. Thirty-nine club members averaged 22.2 tons per acre.

The 45.2 ton yield was achieved with a population of 22,710 plants per acre. Pounds per acre of available N, P, and K were 250, 204, 696 respectively.

Mason Dison's 45.2 tons of 70% moisture silage is equivalent to 13.6 tons of dry matter, with a total digestible nutrient production per acre of 9.6 tons. Actual pounds of crude protein per acre was 2656. Their variety was Eastland 625X, distributed by Seedway, Inc., York, PA.

Mason Dixon's fine silage yield demonstrates, again, the productivity that corn silage can contribute to forage users' programs.

Learn To Increase Profits At Corn Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK — Increasing profits by decreasing cost is the theme of the 1988 Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association's annual conference. The keynote speaker is Herman Warsaw, an Illinois farmer, that over fourteen years has averaged 267 bushels per acre. The bottom line is that Mr. Warsaw can produce these yield levels and still show a considerable profit.

The conference will also feature two Pennsylvania farmers whose production practices have led to yields that are over 200 bushels per acre, which have added "black ink" to the bottom line.

Warsaw will discuss the key points of his program that produced a record dryland 433 bushels off 1.17 acres of corn in 1985. The essential elements of his system are:

* Deep chisel plowing
* Use of crop residue and manure
* Fall and spring fertilizer applications

Warsaw averaged over 200 bushels per acre on his entire farm in 1985 and says that the higher yields per acre helped reduce the cost of each bushel produced.

Pennsylvania and Maryland farmers are invited to listen to Warsaw speak on March 1, 1988 at the Embers Conference Center in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. Luncheon tickets are available from your local dealer. Registration for the conference begins at 8:30 a.m.

Ohio Charolais Breeder Honored At National Show

DENVER, COLO. — The 19th National Charolais Show held Jan. 17 here, was dedicated to two long-time purebred Charolais breeders, Don Phillips of Hartville, Ohio, and Arnold Wienk of Lake Preston, S.D.

Phillips and his wife, Ruth, own Stone-Del Farms. After visiting the Litton Charolais Ranch in Missouri and becoming good friends with Charlie and Mildred Litton, the Phillipses bought their first Charolais in 1969. That same year Phillips attended his first Charolais convention in Kansas City, Mo. Since that first trip he has driven many miles, attended many conventions and visited many Charolais breeders.

The purebred Charolais herd at Stone-Del Farms grazes productive pastures reclaimed from the Phillipses' stone quarry operation. With a carefully planned, long-range procedure, the topsoil is preserved. The stone and coal are removed from the soil, and the land is returned to fertile pastures capable of producing as much or more than they did in their original state.

Phillips made one of the major acquisitions of the Charolais breed in U.S. history with the purchase of the entire Cardinal Creek Farms herd in 1976. Through the years the Stone-Del herd has been built with careful planning and thought. A battalion of top-notch bulls, including breed leaders HCR Exodus 9033, Stone-Del Rocky 306, HVR Sheer Power I and Poker King Junior GV 18G, has come from Stone-Del Farms.

Phillips served as AICA area director from 1983 to 1985 and has served on numerous AICA committees through the years. In 1985, the Phillipses donated $50,000 to the American-International Junior Charolais Association (AIJCA) Scholarship Fund, bringing the fund's total to $100,000. With this donation to the scholarship fund, new $1,000 scholarships were created for AIJCA members. Also, a $500 scholarship and an additional $500 for the queen's travel fund was made available for the reigning Miss Charolais USA.

The Charolais breed has been extremely fortunate to have a breeder who gives so freely of his time in support and promotion. In May, the Phillipses will be dispersing their great herd. They will be missed sorely by the Charolais industry.

Wienk has been farming and ranching all of his life. He and his wife, Carol, have been raising Charolais since 1958. Currently, the family operation runs 250 purebred Charolais cows.

An active AICA member, Wienk served on the board of directors from 1974 to 1981 as director, secretary and treasurer, respectively. In 1981, he was the AICA president. He traveled to Spain as a delegate to the Charolais World Federation meeting that year. Wienk was named the AICA Seedstock Producer of the Year in 1984. That same year, the South Dakota Beef Cattle Improvement Association and the South Dakota Charolais Breeders Association gave him the same honor.

Wienk is a member of the South Dakota Charolais Breeders Association. In the past, he has served as president and director of this group. Wienk was instrumental in organizing the "Upper Midwest Charolais Breeders Association," one of the first promotional Charolais organizations in the United States. He was secretary and treasurer of this organization for the nine years it existed.

In 1976, Wienk spoke at the Second Charolais Planning Conference in Memphis, Tenn., on "Identifying and Developing Your Commercial Bull Market." Proof of his expertise on this subject is shown by his own annual bull sales, which have topped the nation's Charolais sales as reported in the Charolais Journal for four of the last six years. This April the Wienks will host their 19th annual bull sale.

Conservation Compliance Deadline Approaching

HARRISBURG — Farmers with highly erodible cropland now have less than two years to meet the conservation requirements of the 1985 Farm Bill and remain eligible for USDA benefits.

Robert Heidecker, State Resource Conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service, says the farm bill's conservation provisions require farmers with highly erodible cropland to have a conservation plan approved by the county conservation district by January 1, 1990 if they want to remain eligible for USDA farm program benefits, loans, or guarantees. The conservation plan must be completely implemented by January 1, 1995 to continue eligibility.

Heidecker says conservation plans need to be developed or reviewed on 1.6-million acres in Pennsylvania during the next two years. "This workload involves about 37,000 tracts of farmland," he reported. Heidecker notes that the planning workload will not be easy for SCS personnel in Pennsylvania to meet, especially if farmers wait until near the deadline to begin developing conservation plans.

"The sooner farmers ask SCS to help them develop a conservation plan, the greater the chance that we can have all farmers eligible at the deadline," said Heidecker.

"Our goal is to have 65 percent of Pennsylvania's eligible highly erodible land under a conservation plan by the end of 1988, and the rest by the end of 1989," Heidecker says.

Another option is to enroll highly erodible cropland in the Conservation Reserve Program. Under this program, landowners receive annual rental payments for putting highly erodible cropland into permanent cover such as trees or grass. Cost share is also provided for establishing permanent grass, shrubs or trees. The next Conservation Reserve Program sign-up will be February 1-19.

Heidecker adds that highly erodible cropland is not always obvious. Farmers should check with the local Soil Conservation Service office to determine if they have land that meets the highly erodible criteria.

"Contacting the local SCS office for a conservation plan is one of the first things that a farmer should do in 1988," reports Heidecker. "Many farmers who participate in USDA programs can not afford to lose the benefits. It sometimes is the difference between operating at a profit or at a loss."

Beef Cow Calving Management

WAYNE CO. — The month of February can be used to start preparing and planning for the all important beef cow calving season here in Wayne County and across the state of Pennsylvania. The heaviest beef cow calving months are March and April.

Because each live, newborn calf means a potentially weaned, 500 pound feeder calf in the fall, some planning and preparation for this event on beef farms must be done now to help insure the profitability and continued success of that beef operation for years to come.

With that in mind, here are some items to seriously consider in the pre-calving season.

1. Beef producers need to observe all of the beef cows and heifers that are scheduled to calve in the next few months. He should be sure they are carrying adequate body condition for calving. Thin, beef cows and bred heifers tend to produce milk at reduced levels which can result in light feeder calves at weaning time in the fall. Also, the last trimester of the cow's pregnancy is when the developing calf makes a tremendous amount of growth. Cows and heifers in good body condition will probably lose the extra weight when they begin to nurse a calf.

2. Beef producers need to check calving areas, whether it can be in the open field, a wooded area, or a calving barn or shed. Be sure the barn or shed area is clean, dry, and adequately bedded with hay or straw.

3. It's probably a good idea to have calf pulling equipment on hand especially if you anticipate calving problems with beef heifers.

4. Beef producers should keep a supply of iodine disinfectant on hand to treat umbilical cords of newborn beef calves. This step is a preventative measure to lower the risk of introducing bacteria or other infections into the calf's body.

5. Permanent identification is also a necessity for the beef producer. Eartags can do this job and can also include important information such as sire and dam information, birthdate, and weight at birth.

6. Beef producers also need implanting equipment and implants, syringes, needles and vaccines, and castration equipment to work bull calves not being kept for future herd sires. This also means having on hand materials to inject in calves to prevent while muscle disease and vitamin injections for the cows and bred heifers.

7. Beef producers should have a supply of frozen, high-quality colostrum for calves that fail to or are unable to get a first feeding of colostrum soon after birth. Frozen colostrum should be fed to beef calves from dams that have little or no milk or have poor quality colostrum.

8. A heat lamp can help to dry-off and warm newborn calves that are chilled or are weak when they are born.

9. Producers need to check the water supply for the beef brood cows and beef heifers about to calve. Beef cattle need access to water at all times. A beef cow will consume between 5 and 11 gallons of water per day, even in cold weather.

10. A balanced ration needs to be fed to the beef cows and bred heifers in the bred herd. This means doing some forage testing of hays and silages fed to the animals. The ration can then be balanced according to the herd's needs with supplemental grain to help insure adequate and proper nutrition for the herd.

The goal of every beef producer is to have every beef cow deliver a live, healthy, beef calf that eventually will weigh 500 pounds or more when it is weaned in the fall of the year. Following and adopting these management practices can help to produce this result and will help to make the beef enterprise more profitable.

For additional information on beef cattle management and production please contact the Wayne County Extension Service at 717-253-5970 ext. 114.

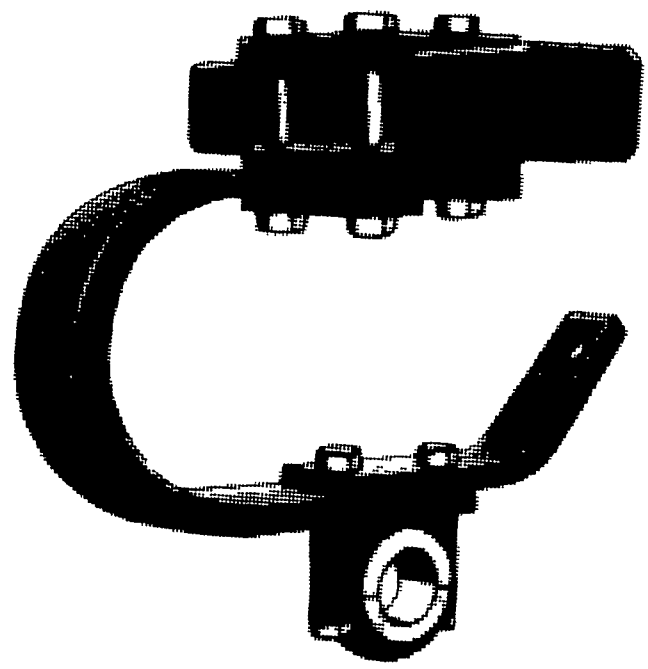
THE FIRST ROCKFLEX DISC IS THE BEST

It Takes More Than A C-ARM BEARING Hanger To Make A ROCKFLEX DISC That LOVES ROCKS



Most disc harrow manufacturers, including Krause, are located in areas that do not have rocks like we have in Pennsylvania and Maryland. Because Hoobers have sold over 500 KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISCS to Pennsylvania and Maryland Farms. KRAUSE knows what it takes to make discs that work and hold up for years of production in tough, rocky conditions.

Before You Purchase A New Disc This SPRING, You Should Try A KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISC... They're Field PROVEN...

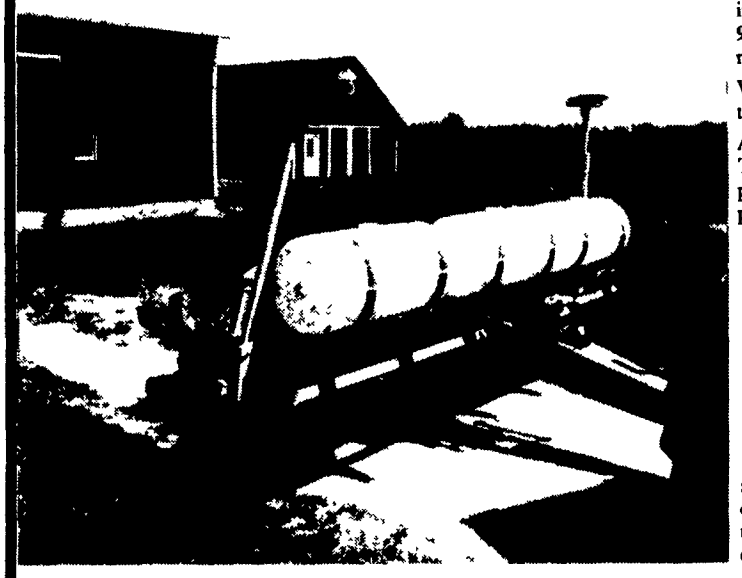
NEW IDEA CORN PLANTERS BEAN PLANTERS

New Idea Gives You Accurate Seed Placement And A Choice Of Design

THE 9000 SERIES

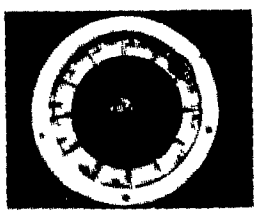
Single Frame, II Plus and Mounted Planters



New Idea has designed the 9000 Series Planters in three models to fit all your planting needs.
9200 Single Frame- for versatility, conservation planting capabilities and ridge-till features.
9300 II Plus- features two 5"x7" toolbar frame members and has conservation and inter-planting capabilities.
9100 Mounted- for unmatched maneuverability.

Whatever planter you choose, New Idea has the features for you.

Accurate seed metering
Two plateless seed meters allow precision planting. For corn, a mechanical finger pickup meter.



Plateless Finger Pickup

singulates each seed and lets you plant at optimum field speeds. Cup-type metering units gently regulate the flow of soybeans to eliminate seed damage

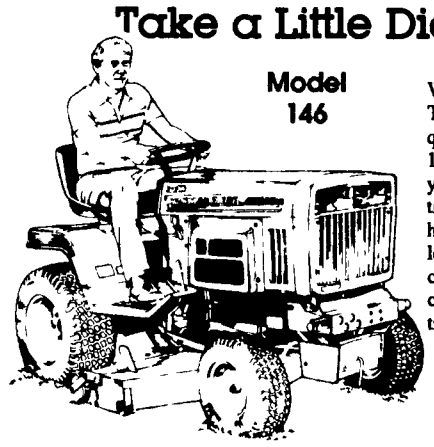
YANMAR

Take a Little Diesel Break



Model 146

With Yanmar's 146 Lawn & Garden Tractor you can take a break from frequent fuel stops because our little diesel 146 tractor virtually sips fuel. That means you can finish faster and enjoy more free time on the weekends. Best of all, our 146 has no electrical system to cause problems, no spark plugs to replace, and no carburetor to clean or adjust... a major cause of problems in gasoline powered tractors.

Test drive a smooth, quiet running Yanmar 146 Lawn & Garden Tractor.

Take a break and see us today!

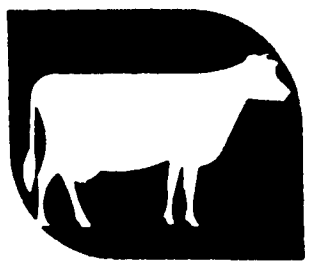
PRO-4 SANITIZING TEAT DIP


Don't kid yourself . . . killing GERMS is only part of the mastitis prevention program!! The answer is PRO-4 Teat Dip.

Pro-4 formulation recognizes that killing germs is only half the battle in mastitis control. Maintaining good healthy teat tissue is the other half of the battle that must be won to reduce mastitis. The multiple conditioning action on the teat skin of Pro-4 is superior to any teat dip on the market today. Pro-4 Teat Dip has a record of 14 years of safe and effective use.

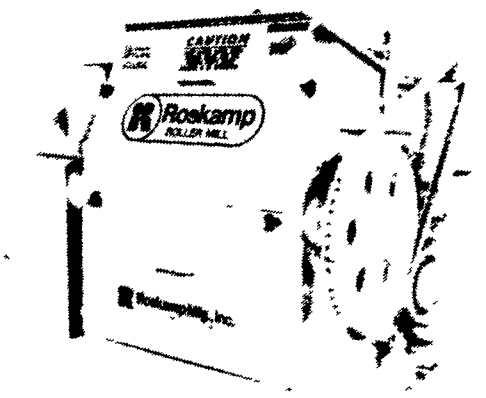
ROSKAMP STATIONARY CORN SILAGE ROLLER MILL



FOR DAIRY
Rolling silage fresh — just before feeding — increases milk production.

FOR BEEF
Less silage is required per pound of gain when silage is freshly rolled before feeding.

FOR HOGS
Freshly rolled silage, with all kernels cracked and all cobs crushed provides a highly palatable and more readily assimilated feed for sows.

DUAL PURPOSE
Hi-moisture or dry shelled corn can be metered into the Roskamp Silage Mill Hopper along with the silage for a uniformly mixed and digestible ration.

University tests have proven that 20% of high moisture whole corn passes through the animal's system undigested. This means evern fifth scoopful of expensive grain is left on your feedlot!

That's why it's money in the bank to freshly roll every bit of high moisture or dry corn just before feeding. Freshly rolled feed is the most palatable and digestible.

The PA State University

Q: What is the purpose of a checkoff program?

A: As producers the sheep and lamb checkoff will provide needed funds to educate consumers, support applied research programs and promote Pennsylvania lamb in the market place. Because lamb remains to be a minor item in the red meat chain, an extra producer commitment can help assure consumers that we produce a wholesome product that can fit in their diet and is worthy of their trust.

Q: Who will administer and control the checkoff program once inacted?

A: The program will be administered in accordance with the requirements of thine member commodity marketing board consisting of Pennsylvania sheep producers will be appointed by the Sure. Board nominations will be solicited from each voting producer. Primary duties of the board will be to adopt, approve and administer producer and consumer information, research and lamb and wool promotion programs throughout Pennsylvania. The program will be run by producers as producers want it to function and shall be controlled by a producer board.

Q: How will the checkoff help the small sheep producer?

A: A healthy market helps everyone. Whether we sell 5 or 1,000 head, we are all better off if the market is strong and consumers are kept informed about the positive values of lamb in their diet. That is the purpose of the ge shall be twenty-five cents ($.25) per head on all sheep and lambs produced ll sheep producers who produce and market sheep and lambs for sale. Any ld, order buyer, dealer or any individual who purchases sheep and lamb must deduct $.25 per head from the sale receipts of the seller.

Q: How will the checkoff funds be collected?

A: The"Collecting person" or purchaser shall make remittance and accounting of the proper charge to the Secretary or his designated fiscal agent by the 15th day of the calendar month following the month collections were made.

Q: How much money will the checkoff raise?

A: Sheep and lamb sale numbers have been estimated at 90,000 head of lambs slaughtered and some 10,000 head of breeding sheep sold annually in Pennsylvania. Approximately $25,000 will become available for conducting statewide, regional and local educational, research and promotional programs.

Q: Why do we need so much money to support the program?

A: Comparative values can help one to better evaluate an adequate annual program budget. Our red meat competitors in Pennsylvania alone are spending annually some $450,000 for beef and veal and $63,000 for pork education, research and promotion programs. The poultry industry spends approximately $1.6 million a year in advertising their products in Pennsylvania .

Q: How will the checme inacted?

A: Following a series of public meetings throughout the state informing producers about the checkoff program the Secretary shall conduct a referendum among the Pennsylvania sheep producers. Approval of the program will be determined by not less than a majority by number of those voting indicating their support of the program.

Q: Can the checkoff program be terminated once inacted?

A: Every five years the Secretary of Agriculture shall call a referendum to determine whether or not two-thirds of the sheep producers voting still desire a checkoff p ogram.

Q: How will the voting be conducted?

A: Ballots will be mailed to all Pennsylvania sheep producers having records of receiving past wool incentive payments through their county ASCS office. All ballots and suggested board nominations will be returned for tally to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Q: Will there be a public hearing on the Marketing Act?

A: Following the scheduled educational meetings on the Marketing Act and prior to voting a public hearing will be announced and conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture

Q: What is the scheduled voting period?

A: Voting is scheduled to take place June 1 through June 15, 1988.

Q: When shall the checkoff program take effect?

A: Following will appoint member Commodity Marketing Board for administering the program from the list of nominees. The checkoff program is scheduled to take effect on August 1,1988.

Q: How may I better inform myself about the Pennsylvania Sheep and Lamb Marketing Act?

A: 1) Attend one of the scheduled county &/or regional educational meetings. Information e.g. date, time and place of these meetings is available by calling your county Extension office 2) Draft copies of the Marketing Act may be requested by writing to or calling the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Markets, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, Pa 17120 Attn. Mr L.J. Hubert. Ph. (717) 783-9948.

Wenger Discusses Development Easements At Seminar

BY LISA RISSER

PRESCOTT — The state of Pennsylvania has the authority, given to it by its voters, to use state funds to purchase development easements on prime farmland, Pennsylvania Senator Noah Wenger told Lebanon County farmers last week.

"Now we need to pass enabling legislature to get the program going," he added.

Adressing attendees at the ag luncheon seminar sponsored by the Lebanon Valley National Bank, Wenger said the state governing bodies are considering legislation that would allocate funds to counties based on a formula. One method involves distributing monies based on the amount of farmland changing hands within a county. "We want the bulk of the money to go where prime farmland is being sold," Wenger declared.

The second plan deals with proportioning the money based on the amount of agriculture within a county.

Asked if he thought the monetary amount indicated on the passed referendum would be sufficient, Wenger replied, "It is enough for us to see if the program will work." From that point, the state would develop a full-scale program.

The amount a county would pay for a development easement is figured by subtracting the land's appraised farm value from its appraised development value. The county will not be able to pay more than the difference between the values for the easement right if using state funds.

Wenger advised farmers to carefully consider their desires before deciding whether or not to sell their land's easement rights. One reason someone might wish to sell those rights is if he or she had no heirs and wanted the land to stay agricultural. Another reason is to get cash to pay a debt or to have cash to leave to heirs who would not inherit the farm.

Funds for the state program won't be available until the end of this year or the start of 1989, Wenger said.

Agricultural legislation

"The public is demanding that there be no sulfa residue in hogs going to market," Karen Darling, deputy assistant secretary of marketing and inspection services, USDA, told farmers. "There is a trace-back system to find out who produced the hog with the residue. The system pertains only to hogs now but they're gearing up for beef. Also legislation has been proposed for checking fish, which is a little extreme. How are we going to do that?"

The industry is making great strides in genetics research with plants to eradicate diseases, Darling reported. Strides also are being made in meat inspection, where soon there will computers to check poultry. "It will be much more efficient," she said, "we won't have to look at meat bird by bird."

Charles Parrott vice president of financial planning with Lebanon Valley National Bank discussed estate planning. "It's a very broad topic," he said. "It gets really complicated. But I want to alert you to certain ideas."

Estate planning is necessary for

Wenger Discusses Development

three main reasons: it provides financial security for beneficiaries, minimizes taxes, and ensures that matters are handled the way the farmer wishes.

The first step is to establish what an individual's estate comprises, according to Parrott. This involves taking a look at the person's inventory of assets. The market value of these assets determines the taxes that will have to be paid.

"A personal estate plan begins with a will," Parrott stated. "The will, first of all, establishes ownership, which is critical for farm estates." From here, the individual will develop a gift-tax plan to reduce estate taxes. This is followed by trust planning, if necessary, and administration planning, which names an executor of the estate and his or her duties.

Predicting the future

Cattle and hog markets are strong because of USDA information, said H. Louis Moore, Penn State agricultural economics specialist. "The cattle industry liquidated more than we thought and is better off because the cattle are worth more due to the low number of them. I expect this year to be good for beef producers. They will get enough money to cover feed and feeder animal costs and some of their fixed costs."

Hog production is increasing, but not as much as was expected, according to Moore. Therefore farmers are price receptive. Moore expects 1988 to be a fair year for pork producers.

"Farmers have done a good job of managing crop production. I expect corn prices to be higher this year over 1987," Moore added.

Beef Cattle Conference To Be Held At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK — The 1988 Pennsylvania Beef Cattle Conference, "Conception to Carcass: Beef Production for the Small Herd Owner," formerly known as the Allenbury Conference, will be held on Penn State's University Park campus Feb. 26-27. The conference is cosponsored by Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science and The Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association.

On Friday afternoon, Dr. Lester Griel, Dr. Clair Engle and Dr. Tom Drake will conduct a hands-on barn skills workshop. The workshop will focus on basic management procedures which include castration, dehorning and vaccinations. Friday evening, conference guests can attend a barbecue and enjoy the sounds of a live band.

Saturday's highlights include representatives from national retailers and packers who will discuss the newest meat and cattle marketing approaches. The Pa. Cattlemen's Association annual membership meeting and spring banquet will be held Saturday evening. Larry Waterfield, Washington's editor of the Drover's Journal will be the keynote speaker.

The conference also offers a ladies' program, which consists of a tour of historic Boalsburg and a session on beef promotion, which will be hosted by Crystal Schaffer, the 1987 Cattleman's Queen.

PRV Eradication Nets $2.4 Million In Federal Funding

DES MOINES, IA — While the federal deficit reduction package signed by President Reagan just before Christmas means a $900-million cut in the 1988 agriculture budget, America's pork producers, through the efforts of the National Pork producers Council (NPPC), were able to obtain $2.4-million in new federal funding for the start-up of the PRV eradication program.

The massive ten year program was approved by producer leaders at NPPC's annual meeting in March of this year. NPPC producer leades worked since that time to get the House and Senate to appropriate enough funds to get the program underway in 1988. When the stock market crashed in October, and the Congress and Administration started emergency budget cutting talks, the chances of getting the new money for PRV funding looked bleak.

NPPC's Producer Oversight Committee, chaired by Don Gingerich, a pork producer from Parnell, Iowa, spent a great deal of time in recent weeks button-holing key numbers of Congress and letting them know how important the PRV funds were to producers. The NPPC Washington, DC office staff was of great assistance, according to Gingerich. "This was perhaps the worst possible time to go after new money for a project, but our persistence paid off. We proved to lawmakers it was a program that deserved priority funding," Gingerich said.

Chester Extension To Hold Annual Meeting

The Chester County Extension Service will hold its 1987 Annual Meeting on Friday evening March 4, 1988 at the Lionville Junior High School. The featured speaker of the evening is Mr. Walt Buescher, of Pigeon's Forge, Tennessee. Mr. Buescher is a nationally known speaker who will be addressing trends in agribusiness that affect all of us. Registration and educational exhibits open at 6:30 PM, with dinner following at 7PM. A short business meeting will also be held to elect members to the 1988 Extension Executive Board. Reservations are required and are due by February 24, 1988. Call the Chester County Extension Office for further details and/or reservations.

Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity University.

Sign-Up Dates

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng today announced that signup for the 1988 wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice programs will be from February 16 through April 15, 1988.

Legislation recently passed by Congress requires that a number of changes be made to the commodity programs. Accordingly signup for these programs will not begin until February and the provisions of these programs will be announced as soon as possible.

FARM BUSINESS INFORMATION - WHERE DO FARMERS GET IT?

Virgil E. Crowley
Professor Emeritus

I recently had an opportunity to spend a few days visiting with farmers in a small rural town in Missouri. I knew many of these farmers, indeed I had known some of them for many years. Thus it was both an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and gain some insight into farming conditions and problems in Missouri. The conservation with these farmers and among these farmers was typical farmer talk. How much did that cornfield by the railroad track make, and how are your soybeans turning out? Uppermost in all of the conversation was "What is the elevator paying for soybeans today?", and "What did the corn market do yesterday?"

Certainly these were items of concern to these farmers. Price and yield are important considerations in determining net farm income. Yet not once in their conversations about price did I hear any mention of pricing information other than what was obtained from the local elevator.

On my return to Pennsylvania I found myself wondering where these farmers obtained information on which they made their business decisions. Did they rely only on the local elevator for information on prices, on markets, and perhaps other crucial information such as varieties of seed, chemicals to use for weed control and etc. This is not to say they are wrong, if such is the case, for certainly the local elevator or farm supply center is an excellent source of information on farm inputs and commodity prices.

Perhaps my question should not be where do farmers get information as much as it should be where should they get information and how much. It seems to me that past events should supply farmers with a great deal of information that could be helpful. That means a farmer's own records -- on yields, prices received for commodities sold, fertilizer used, and weather conditions need to be considered. True these change from season to season (sometimes from week to week) but they still provide important information.

Another important source of information for farmers is friends and neighbors. In many farming communities this is the most important source. After all, most farmers rationalize -- my neighbor has the same interests and problems that I have. We grow essentially the same crops and have the same livestock enterprises and therefore what benefits and works well for my neighbor should work for me. While this is a logical approach, it is often an erroneous one and can lead to serious mistakes in farm business management decisions. It is important for farmers to consult with their neighbors and add the information they provide to their other sources of information. However, they should remember that each individual is different and what works for one farmer will not necessarily work for that farmer's neighbor.

Other imporant sources of information for farmers are farm magazines, newspapers, consulting services, and the farmers credit sources.

An important source of information that many farmers are often unaware of is the Cooperative Extension Service. Often farmers are not fully aware of the depth of knowledge that their local extension agents have about farm and home operations. Also if the local county extension agents encounter a problem that they feel requires additional expertise they can call on specialists from the land grant university in their state for assistance. Thus, through their local county extension office, farmers have access to current information on the latest proven technology and research which can be applied and used on their farm.

Other important sources of information for farmers include the Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The Soil Conservation Service assists farmers in developing conservation plans for their farm. These plans often include contour strips, waterways, ponds, terraces, and field layout. The ASCS administers the various farm programs including Commodity Credit Corporation loans and conservation payments.

Another source of information that is becoming increasingly important is the video cassette. With more and more homes either owning or having access to video tape players, video tapes become excellent tools for providing farm information which farmers can use at their leisure in their home.

Thus while there are many sources of information which the farmer can use, the question often arises as to which of these is the most important. In my judgment all of them are important and the successful farm operator will use all of them (plus some which I have probably omitted). There will be some sources of information which will carry greater weight than others. This is often determined by personalities and by the farmer's past experience with sources of information.

Having briefly discussed many of the sources of information available to farmers (hardly any of these were mentioned by the Missouri farmers), it seems to me another question is important. Are these various sources of information providing the information that farmers want? My 35+ years of work in farm management convinces me that these sources provide information that farmers need, however it may not always be in a form that is readily usable and easily understood.

In some situations some sources may supply too much information. By this I mean that sometimes the farmer has to look through or read too much material to find what he/she really wants to know. I am sure many people would argue that often the informational sources discussed don't supply enough, rather than too much. However I keep thinking about those Missouri farmers and the fact their major information sources appeared to be their neighbors and the local elevator. Why? I suspect it is because they only answered the questions asked and they answered them directly. While this is an approach that apparently pleases the farmer and satisfied their need, it leaves a serious void that many of the other informational sources do try to cover. What about alternatives?

For example, the farmer's neighbor may not be aware of alternatives and if so, may not mention them. The local elevator operator is not likely to tell the farmer that another elevator in a nearby town is paying 10 cents more per bushel for soybeans. Thus a key point in the information gathering process is some way of insuring that alternatives for the action being considered are considered. Without alternatives the only decision required is whether to farm or quit farming. For example, if there is only one elevator that purchases grain and soybeans and only one source of supply for farm inputs, you deal with the source or you don't farm.

New and improved technology such as the new microcomputers and video tape players provide tools which permit farmers to have the best of both worlds. They can store large quantities of information, examine alternatives, yet they can also select only those specific areas about which they have questions and review these without having to go through all of the information available. Undoubtedly this will make those information sources, other than friends and neighbors, more available and more widely used.

Legislators Have Budget Task Cut Out For Them

BY REP. JOHN E. BARLEY

If Pennsylvania legislators have one challenge in the formulation of the 1988-89 state budget, it's to ensure that the final plan reflects the importance of agriculture in the Keystone state.

Unfortunately, the budget proposed this week by Governor Casey seems to lack that understanding.

A state which has agriculture as its leading industry has a great opportunity to encourage significant economic development through that industry. However, based on my reading of the governor's budget proposal, he has failed to seize that opportunity.

One good agricultural development proposal in the governor's budget is drastically underfunded. An Agricultural Entrepreneur Program to provide low-interest loans to agribusiness promoting new uses of farm products is a very worthy legislative, but will accomplish little on a statewide budget of $1 million.

With the exception of a $1 million increase for food banks, there are no major increases for existing agricultural programs contained in the budget proposal.

The vast potential for economic development through agriculture could -- if adequately cultivated -- produce thousands of jobs and millions of dollars in revenues. And, like any economic development, it could provide significant returns for the state in the form of tax revenues.

The governor is missing an important opportunity when he fails to propose adequately funded initiatives that encourage farmers to expand their operations. Areas of great potential for expansion include on-farm processing, energy generation and innovative marketing.

Farm projects to turn animal waste into energy could provide great promise to not only farmers but all Pennsylvanians if adequately encouraged by the state. Such energy production would be environmentally and economically beneficial.

I believe the governor's budget also misses the boat in failing to encourage significant expansion of agricultural exports: a step which would be beneficial to Pennsylvania farmers and Americans concerned about the (in)balance of trade.

As a fiscal conservative, I don't advocate handouts for the agricultural community, just an opportunity to expand its existing potential. If adequately funded, agricultural development efforts will pay handsome dividends, not just to Pennsylvania farmers, but all citizens of the commonwealth.

What's In Your Well Water?

The Adams County Conservation District has made arrangements through the Department of Environmental Resource State Bureau of Laboratories for reduced rates for water testing. The following group tests will be offered. An order form is on the other side of this paper. The Adams County Conservation District and the Adams County Extension Service are planning a Water Quality Information Fair this spring.

GROUP:

1. Bacteria— $8.00- The analysis of water for bacteria of the coliform group determines the sanitary quality. Shallow wells and springs are most commonly affected. It is recommended that springs or wells used for drinking water be checked at least annually. According to DER 60% of the wells in PA are contaminated with bacteria.

2. Nitrite Nitrogen, Nitrate Nitrogen, Ammonia Nitrogen, and Chloride— $11.00- Nitrate most commonly enters the groundwater in farming areas. In excessive amounts it can cause illness in infants. Chloride is accumulated through long term contamination with septic effluent.

3. Iron, Manganese, Aluminum, and Sodium— $11.00- Iron and manganese can impart an off taste to the water. Sodium may be a minor problem if one has high blood pressure. Manganese can also cause mechanical problems in water lines in chicken houses.

4. pH, Alkalinity, and Hardness— $6.00- Low pH indicates acid water which could dissolvel metal plumbing systems thus adding harmful levels of metal to water.

ENTER THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION PROGRAM NOW!

(Deadline April 15, 1988)

Beautiful Farmsteads...

A Positive Story

The Northeast is rightfully proud of its dairy industry. Agriculture is our number one industry, with milk its major commodity. Realizing dairying's importance to the area's economy, the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program (NEDFBP) was incorporated November 1983 to honor attractive dairy farms with the Dairy of Distinction Award.

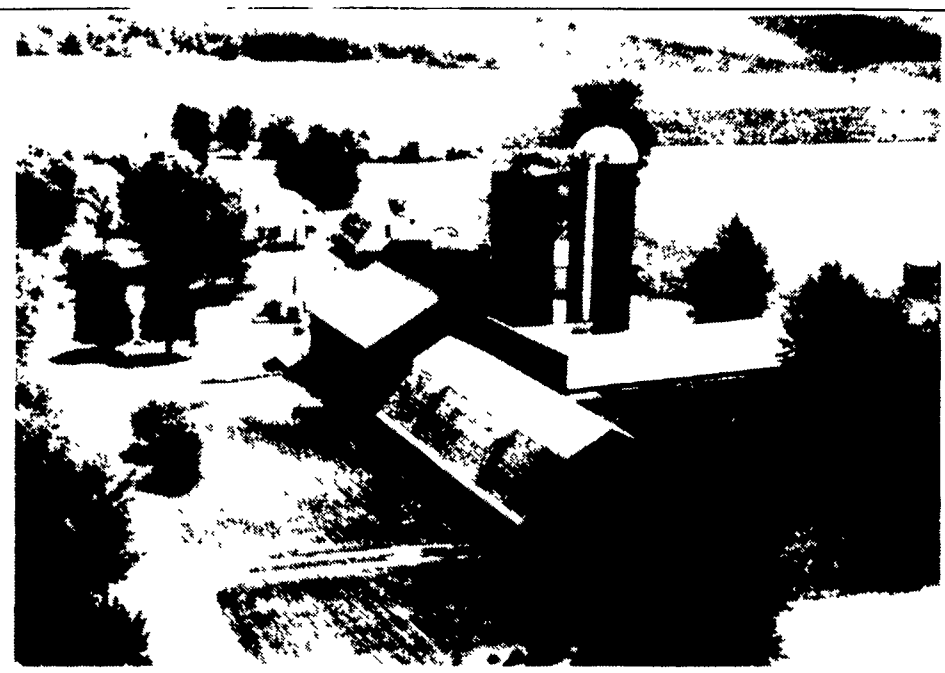
The award program is based on the concept that these attractive farmsteads will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, stimulate milk sales and encourage public support for the industry.

The NEDFBP has divided the Northeast into regions, with approximately the same number of farms per district. Each district is under the jurisdiction of a local committee responsible for organizing the judging, awarding the Dairy of Distinction signs and publicity. The program also operates on the regional level through the NEDFBP Board of Directors, which ovesee and provide support and guidance to the local communities. All active dairy farms within the region covered by the program are eligible to apply for a Dairy of Distinction award. Applications, available from the program's area secretary, the local committees and other sources such as agricultural publications, must be submitted by April 15 of each year.

Farm judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. This year in the Pennsylvania Program in addition to the district team of judges that does the roadside inspection, the sanitarian for your cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process. Winning farms receive a colorful, aluminum 18x24 inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed on the farmstead near the roadside so passers-by can recognize the farm as a Dairy of Distinction.

Dairy of Distinction farms will be judged every year to ensure they maintain the excellent standards required for the award

This exciting program promotes agriculture at its best. Broad public awareness of the program is vital to its success and the impact will increase as more consumers see Dairy of Distinction farms and associate them with dairy products sold in stores.



The Daniel Jones Farm, Stoneboro, Mercer county, was one of the nearly 100 farms so honored in 1987.

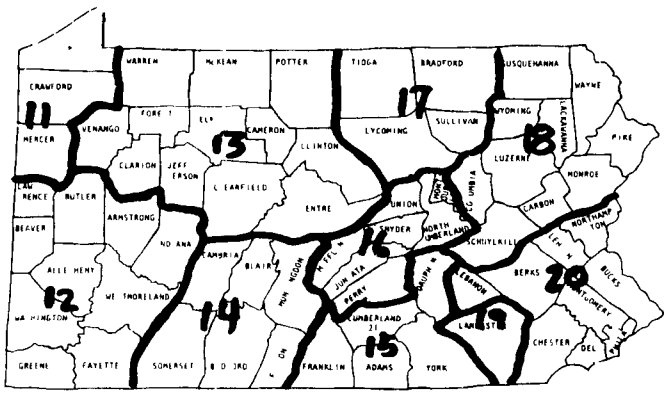
The Dairy of Distinction program is a cooperative, widespread industry effort Sponsors include cooperative extension, agricultural cooperatives, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agribusinesses Dairy of Distinction is a product of people who care about the Northeast dairy industry.

The NEDFBP extends an invitation to anyone interested in promoting beautiful dairy farms Dairy of Distinction depends on people — particularly farmers who are proud of their farms and want to help the product they produce

We love the Northeast — its lakes, hills, valleys, mountains, cities .and the beautiful Dairies of Distinction!

Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program

DAIRY OF DISTINCTION DISTRICTS



Pennsylvania Is Divided Into These Districts. Approximately 10 Dairy Of Distinction Awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to you. You receive a nice metal sign to put at the end of your lane and a certificate. In addition Lancaster Farming will present this year's winners from Pennsylvania with a color photograph made from a color slide. This year in the Pennsylvania Program in addition to the district team of judges that does the roadside inspection, the sanitarian for your cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process. If your farm is a winner be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends it to Lancaster Farming in time for the awards ceremony.

Satellite Technology Can Benefit Dairy Farmers

BY PAT PURCELL

HADLEY, MASSACHUSETTS — Live from Lake Buena Vista Resort at Disney World the Satellite Adventure Sale, in Orlando, Florida, in Fresno, California, in Madison, Wisconsin and in Binghamton, New York.

No, the top Holstein breeders in America are not transporting their finest stock to four locations. But via satellite the video of every animal will be transported to the locations outside Orlando for actual live bidding.

The utilization of the satellite and video technology can be a great benefit to the dairy farmer in all areas of the business, not only cattle merchandising. Whether its farm machinery, an actual farming operation to be sold or cattle, the video transmission immediately enlarges the potential market to encompass the nation and may be the world.

Where potential buyers in one area may be temporarily restricted in funds by a depressed enonomic condition, across the nation, funds may permit another buyer to make the purchase, allowing the seller to get top dollar.

In the past potential buyers outside of the sale location may have been discouraged from attending due to bad weather, a full business schedule or deterred by the traveling distance. But while it may be near blizzard conditions in Minnesota, it may be warm and sunny in California. The potential of via satellite sales could mean the difference between selling at $20,000 to a California buyer, rather than selling at $5,000 in Minnesota at a poorly attended sale.

The Satellite Adventure Sale claims to be on the leading edge of a new technology permitting a big break through for the dairy industry, while other industries have employed this technology to improve communications and business for years. This is the first time the dairy industry has put this communications to work, according to sale coordinator, Bruce Whittier of Pioneer Valley Sales in Massachusetts.

The sale will take place live in Orlando, Florida, 6 p.m., Monday, February 29. Prospective buyers need not travel to Orlando to view or purchase the animals and that's the beauty of this affair, according to Whittier.

"We've overcome geography and distance. If the buyers can't come to us, then we'll take the cattle to them," said Whittier.

For those who choose not to travel to Orlando, those interested in bidding can do so in three other locations. Jay Howes of American Breeders Service will be hosting the sale via satellite at the Holiday Inn, Binghamton, New York. In Madison, Wisconsin, Tom Morris of Landmark Genetics will host the affair at the Sheraton Inn. Fresno, California will be the West Coast location with Chris Dei as the host at the Centre Plaza Holiday Inn. Bidding will not be permitted from any other locations or from homes. Bidding can only be done at one of the four locations.

It's no coincidence this sale is occurring on the Leap Year date. This is huge undertaking began to take shape over a year ago. According to Whittier a sale of this magnitude can only be possible every four years. Although cattle breeders and merchandisers were quick to be a part of this innovative approach to selling, the organization has taken a lot of hard work.

Prevention Of Health Problems Focus Of Dairy Meetings

LANCASTER — Hundreds of farmers from Lancaster and several surrounding counties attended Agway's annual winter dairy meetings held this week to gather information on dairy health and nutrition.

Dr. James E. Nocek, Director, Dairy and Livestock, Research and Development, discussed prevention and care of foot problems in dairy herds and the challenge of feeding high producing cows. Dr. Carl Johnson, Research Veterinarian of Pfizer, Inc. explained health management programs for controlling parasites. Dr. Normand St-Pierre, Animal Nutritionist, examined feed additives for the proper selection and utitilzation in diary herds.

With such problems as recurring mastitis, twisted stomachs, ketosis, milk fever, retained placentas to contend with, foot problems in milking cows may fall low on the priority list for many dairymen. Foot problems may seem unimportant because their effect on milk production may be subtle. However, subtle losses can add up, but more importantly, foot problems left untreated can lead to the loss of a valuable producer.

An 80 to 100-pound per day milking cow is not worth much to the dairyman if she cannot make it into the milking parlor or feedbunk. Foot ailments can occur from poor nutrition balance, stressful environment or be the result of inherited traits, but they can be prevented and corrected.

"A high producer is already so stressed for production she must be observed frequently. If she becomes lame during her peak production you won't be able to bring her back up to that production level after the problem has been corrected," explained Nocek. "Foot problems slow down the whole operation and it can be avoided by better management."

High producing cows can be particularly susceptible to a form of lameness which has no visible signs, until the animal begins to limp.

"Diets too high in acid from a high grain diet leads to internal disintegration of the connecting tissue in the foot. The breakdown of this tissue and the dilation of the blood

The Value Of Quality In Marketing Alfalfa Hay

BY GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
EXTENSION DAIRY
SPECIALIST
UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

NEWARK, DE. — At our last Del-Mar Forage Day, Dr. D.C. Petritz from the agricultural economics department of Purdue University spoke about how to get more money for farm hay sales. The topic is important since hay can be a considerable source of side income in this area for our farmers. Too often hay for sale brings little money because it has been rained on, is too old, or too stemmy and dusty, or even moldy, so it ends up as low priced mulch or for compost in mushroom houses.

Yet producing alfalfa hay isn't a low cost enterprise. Total production costs at 8 tons per acre average $400 per acre. Profits depend on yield and quality. Break-even yields may be around 6 tons at a market price of $60 per ton. Prices, of course, are influenced by supply and demand. U.S. alfalfa hay production in 1987 was around 88 million tons on 25 million acres, about 5 percent less than the previous year. However, hay production of all kinds was 186 million tons--up 2 percent from the year before.

Weather, carry-over stocks and pasture conditions are market factors influencing supply, demand and prices. Hay supplies in the Northeast are estimated to be up by 25 percent in Virginia, down 11 percent in Maryland, up 5 percent in Delaware, down 8 percent in Pennsylvania, down 7 percent in Ohio and up 1 percent in New York compared to last year. However, long distance hay shipments from the Midwest and Canada are expected to hold prices down, especially if the winter continues to be mild here and silage crops for cattle remain plentiful.

Given this supply picture, quality is the only variable over which the producer looking for a better price has much control.

The ability to determine quality at the time of sale through an instant nutrient lab analysis from Near-Infra-Red instruments instead of the old-fashioned wet-chemistry would help tremendously in getting better prices to the producer. Adoption of uniform quality standards based on the nutrient content of hays, rather than their smell, color and touch is also needed. Since hays of different nutrient content have different feeding values for cattle, sheep and horses, it follows that they should have different prices.

So what is the relationship between hay quality and its economic value? Simply said it is (1) the nutrient content in the hay, (2) the amount of it voluntarily eaten by the animals and (3) the performance of the animals in meat, milk, fiber and work after digesting the hay at a certain rate.

Stage of maturity has the biggest influence on all three factors. Experiments with dairy cows have shown that milk production declines 1 pound per cow per day for each day advance in maturity beyond prebloom when feeding alfalfa hay.

In Wisconsin experiments, prebloom alfalfa was shown to have 24 percent more nutritional value than full bloom alfalfa hay. As more mature alfalfa was fed, an increasing amount of soybean oil meal was needed as a supplement to maintain high milk production levels. And this higher supplement level raised the cost of milk production.

So you see, hay quality is extremely important to the hay buyer and should translate into a willingness to pay different prices depending on the quality offered. This, in turn, should translate into a willingness of the seller to offer nutrient analysis as a means of obtaining better prices. Having this factual information available at farm sales or auctions should be well worth the trouble and help assure superior sales and more confident buyers-- even repeat buyers!

Years ago, Professor Shenk of Penn State University pioneered the use of Near-Infra-Red hay testing instruments, but we haven't yet seen wide adoption in this region. Wouldn't using this equipment be an important factor in making the regional market more profitable for both producers and buyers?

Dairy Meetings

vessels occurs in the early lactation period when the farmer is feeding a lot of grain to her," stated Nocek.

"A good manager will watch his cows during this period to detect if a cow is walking tenderly on her feet. He can examine her to see if the foot feels warm to the touch or apply pressure to her foot to see if it is sensitive. This laminitis has got to be caught right away or it could cost him the cow."

When this does occur Nocek urges the farmer to take a look at all his cows to see if there other problems instead of over reacting and cutting the grain in all the feed.

"Lameness if not detected right away and treated could result in blown-up foot with a few days and that 100-pound milker will have fallen to about 50 pounds per day," warns Nocek.

Free stalls and confinement stalls both have disadvantages in relation to foot problems. The free stalls usually has a slippery floor, with more moisture around leading to softer hooves. According to Nocek, foot baths would be recommended more than a trim to harden the hoof material. Confinement stalls, although a dryer environment, may be too dry sometimes and cause heel cracks and tend to make the hoof brittle.

"Prevention of lameness can best be done by trimming and examining feet and hooves atleast once a year and it would be better if it were twice a year. An overgrowth of tissue on the bottom of the foot, an ulcer, or lameness can be detected and trimmed or treated," said Nocek.

To avoid the loss of a high producer for either a short time or indefinitely, prevention is more valuable than the cure.
